British Repeat Raids on Nazi Air Base

Follow 7-Hour Night Assault With New Raid

London Reports Extensive Damage Done to Hangers, Railways, Barracks; Make Pictures and Drop More Bombs In Second Flight.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—A new British aerial attack on the Island of Sylt, the third in less than 24 hours, was reported in an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen today.

BULLETIN

LONDON—British reconnaissance pilots were reported today to have informed the air ministry that the Royal Air Force bombing attack on Sylt Island resulted in tremendous damage to one of Germany's most important North sea air bases.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—The unleashed Royal Air Force, its appetite whetted by a booming seven-hour continuous raid on the German fortifications on Sylt Island, returned to the scene today with bomb, gun and camera to work more havoc and prove it with pictures.

Air ministry sources said the main objective of the daylight flights over the 350-mile North sea expanse was to make photographs, but reports from Tonder, Denmark, said Sylt apparently was being bombarded all over again.

Two planes which took photographs of Sylt this morning returned safely.

Poor visibility, compared with the bright moonlight and drifting clouds that aided the British last night and early today, prevented the Danish coastal observers from estimating accurately the number of planes involved in the follow-up raid.

They said, however, that apparently there were six groups of bombers, with the reverberating explosion equal or nearly equal to those previously, and German anti-aircraft batteries keeping up a terrific defense.

The Danes said they themselves fired warning shots at one foreign plane which flew over Danish soil, and that several bombs were dropped on the coast of Denmark, on which they said one plane landed with spitting machine-guns.

Thirty of the latest types of Wellington and Whitley bombers were believed to have engaged in the raids starting last night, the British Press Associated reported, although there was no official word of the numbers.

Already, on the strength of glimpses caught by the crews of wheeling bombers in the rainbow glare of battle, the air ministry reported the gigantic raid had destroyed seaplane hangars, a railway, barracks, jetties and concrete ramps.

PACT: Moscow Turns Thumbs Down on Scandinavian Treaty

(By Associated Press)

MOSCOW—Soviet Russia has turned thumbs down on any defensive alliance among Scandinavian states and Finland on the ground that it would be "aimed at the U. S. S. R." and in conflict with the Russian-Finnish peace treaty.

The official Russian news agency, Tass, announced today that it was authorized to publish this as the Russian government's position.

"The foreign press alleges that negotiations are going on among Finland, Sweden and Norway on conclusion of a so-called 'defensive alliance' for the purpose of military protection of the frontiers of Finland," said the announcement.

"It is also alleged that the Soviet Union does not object to such a 'defensive alliance' among Finland, Sweden and Norway.

"Tass is authorized to state that these reports on the attitude of the Soviet Union do not correspond to the facts."

Tass added that statements in the Norwegian parliament had made it clear that such a combination "would be aimed against the U. S. S. R. and would directly contradict the (Finnish-Russian) peace treaty."

Article 3 of the March 12 treaty of Moscow, which ended three and one-half months of war between Finland and Russia, binds each party not to conclude an alliance or join any coalition against the other.

(Some Finnish and Scandinavian quarters had held that a defensive alliance, if not directed specifically against the Soviet Union would not be barred by this article.)

POLICY: U. S. Steering Shy Of European 'Peace' Moves

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—If there is such a thing as a ten-foot pole in diplomacy, the United States government is using it to keep away from even the appearance of taking the slightest part in any peace moves which may be going on in Europe.

Undersecretary Welles, President Roosevelt's fact-finding envoy who sailed today for the United States, has proved a magnet for all varieties of peace and mediation suggestions.

However, on the eve of his departure, Welles said emphatically that he had not received any peace plan or proposals from any belligerent or other government, nor had he conveyed any such proposals to any government.

As if to buttress what Welles said, the White House chose the same day to caution the country against too great optimism.

"Peace headlines," said Stephen Early, a presidential secretary, "would appear to be very empty."

On the other hand, he added, America should not despair of peace.

President Roosevelt later said the government lacked any information on the Hitler-Mussolini meeting Monday.

Behind this generally negative attitude lies the following ex-

FIRE PROBLEM STILL UNSOLVED

Chief Says He Doesn't Know What Steps He'll Take to Enforce 72-Hour Week.

The city's problem of how to comply with a state law providing for a 72-hour week for firemen was still unsolved today as Fire Chief Charles Seeberger said he didn't know what steps he would take.

The fire chief said that he hadn't had time to consider the instructions from Mayor W. J. Locke which were issued yesterday and delivered to the fire chief's office this morning.

The instructions were for Seeburger to work out measures immediately to comply with the state law in order to avoid a mandamus action which the state industrial department threatened to bring against the city unless the hours of city firemen are reduced from 84 to 72 a week.

Locke suggested three ways in which this might be accomplished: Asking city council to "dig up" the money from city funds, abandon one fire station which would boost fire insurance rates or reduce salaries to hire more men until the money can be found.

Seeburger said that he was not sure that he would go back to city council as he had already asked council to allocate funds for increasing his staff by four men, at an estimated cost of $6,500 the first year. Council failed to act on the recommendation.

Council has asked City Solicitor Marion D. Ward to draw up legislation for submitting a one-mill levy to voters next November which would provide funds to meet the increased cost of the fire department.

CLEVELAND — (UP) — James L. Lind, 50, assistant city law director, died yesterday following a lingering illness.

Weatherman Opens Bag of Tricks as Spring Blows In Snowstorm as Good as Any of King Winter's Best Hits City Half Hour After New Season Arrives.

The weatherman brought out his whole bag of tricks today to usher in the first day of spring, and the tricks included snow, rain, freezing temperatures, thaw, slush, clouds and warm sunshine scattered over the northern portion of the state.

The new season officially arrived at 1:24 p. m. and a half hour later a snowstorm that would make even King Winter envious, broke loose with full fury.

In a few minutes Mother Earth was blanketed white again and strange as it may seem—it was spring.

The snow followed a sudden drop in the temperature. After registering a comparatively balmy 45 degrees at noon, the mercury nose-dived 13 degrees to the freezing mark two hours later.

The snow blanket fell over most of northern Ohio where the temperature ranged from 30 to 36 degrees.

This morning spring seemed to be coming in with her own orchestral accompaniment of a March wind here which sent hats rolling.

But as though to make up for this disgraceful behavior on the first day of spring, the sun came out in the middle of the morning and fairly beamed with good will and enchanting promises although the March wind continued to shake the windows, roar around chimneys and blow papers and refuse over the streets and lawns.

The weather forecast indicated that there would be changeable weather throughout today with probably clear and colder tomorrow.

DOOMED TO DIE

Cleveland Ex-Bootlegger Hears Murder Sentence.

CLEVELAND — (UP) — Angelo Porello, 53, of the Porello clan, notorious in Cleveland during the prohibition era, was sentenced today to die in the electric chair July 26 for the murder of his former partner, Joseph Smeraldi.

Sentence was passed by Common Pleas Judge Frank J. Merrick, who with Judge A. R. Corlett and S. E. Kramer found Porello guilty late in January.

"I wasn't convicted by law, but because my name is Porello," the former corn sugar dealer of prohibition days commented.

Four of Porello's six brothers were slain during a feud growing out of the corn sugar industry several years ago.

COURT RULING HITS HUNDREDS OF JOB SUITS

Ohio Supreme Bench Holds That Provisional Appointees Can Be Ousted.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—The state supreme court in a decision expected to affect hundreds of dismissed state employes held today that a provisional civil service employe appointed without a non-competitive examination could be dismissed summarily.

E. G. Schuessler, chief counsel in the attorney general's office, said the ruling would result in the dismissal of all reinstatement suits by employes ousted by the Bricker administration

Director Jacob Taylor of the liquor department, against which scores of such suits are still pending, said the decision disposed of all.

Although the high court held previously that a provisional appointee could not be dismissed unless charges were filed and sustained by the civil service commission, the new ruling declared that failure to take non-competitive examinations deprived the provisional employes of civil service protection.

The court refused to grant a writ compelling the state liquor department to reinstate Thomas F. Lynch as a clerk in a New Lexington store.

The ruling apparently affected similar pleas of 17 other former clerks in Cuyahoga, Hamilton, Montgomery, Athens and Licking county stores.

Lynch was named as a provisional appointee, that is, not from an eligible list determined by competitive examination. Previously the court had held that provisional employes were protected by the usual civil service laws relating to dismissals, a ruling that threatened to upset Gov. John W. Bricker's efforts to dismiss hundreds employed by the previous administration.

The court found, however, that in the case of Lynch and apparently the other 17 clerks, the civil service commission had failed to follow the customary course of conducting non-competitive examinations to show the appointees' qualifications.

The non-competitive examination, the court ruled, was essential to giving the provisional employe civil service status.

Judge George S. Myers dissented from the majority opinion.

EDISON RUNS

Navy Secretary to Run for Jersey Governorship.

WEST ORANGE, N. J.—(AP)—Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison announced today he would seek the Democratic nomination for governor of New Jersey.

Edison, in a statement from his home here, said that "after weeks of earnest consideration and with a full appreciation of the seriousness and responsibilities of the step I am taking, I have decided to permit my name to go on the petition for nomination as governor of New Jersey on the Democratic ticket."

Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, Democratic chief, said the navy department head would make a "good candidate."

Entered in the May 21 Republican primary are former Governor Harold G. Hoffman and State Senator Robert C. Hendrickson.

The Democratic incumbent, Gov. A. Harry Moore, is ineligible to succeed himself.

Trooper Poses as Killer to Uncover Bizarre Murder Plot

UNIONTOWN, Pa.—A state trooper posing as a "killer" uncovered a bizarre murder-for-insurance plot in which a spiritualist minister and the wife of a tavern keeper are accused of scheming to kill the woman's husband.

Motor Police Lieut. William R. Hanna said Rev. Clayton R. Miller, 63, of nearby Brownsville, and Mrs. Amelia Santilli, 31-year-old attractive brunette of Uniontown, signed statements admitting the frustrated plot which they blamed each other for originating.

The two waived hearing last night on charges of conspiracy to commit murder and solicitation to commit murder. They were jailed without bond and denied visitors pending action by the June term of court.

Police learned of the plot a week ago from a former convict. The intended victim, 47-year-old Albert Santilli, was spirited out of the city for safekeeping. Mrs. Santilli reported he had been abducted.

"I could hardly believe she would want to kill me. I am through with her forever," declared the quiet Santilli.

TRUSTIES FACE O. S. R. 'COURT'

3-Man Board to Set Penalty for Four Ringleaders of Honor Camp Revolt.

Returned to the Ohio State reformatory yesterday following a rebellion at the Grafton honor camp, four alleged ring leaders will face a three-man institution court Friday, Supt. Arthur L. Glattke said today.

The inmates said to have been responsible for the disturbance in which 43 prisoners participated in a "sit-down" strike have lost their trusty privileges and face additional time as penalty for their conduct.

They are Walter Ziemiecki, 29, and Frank Miller, 30, both of Cuyahoga county, and Liborio Arena, 17, and Floyd Kessler, 26, both of Stark county.

Their cases will be heard by the reformatory court consisting of Glattke, O. F. Garver, assistant superintendent, and A. T. Sneeringer, disciplinarian.

Protesting against certain rules at the farm and against the food, the four were charged with inciting the rebellion in which 43 of the trusties refused to go to work after breakfast yesterday unless Supt. John H. Reynard met their demands.

Elyria police and Lorain county sheriff's deputies armed with tear gas were called to the farm when a riot threatened but trouble was averted when the rebellious inmates were taken to the Lorain county jail at Elyria.

All but the four who were returned to Mansfield were back at the farm today on a promise of good behavior.

WAR LEADER RESIGNS AFTER DEPUTIES VOTE

Receives Only Minority Pledge of Confidence So Gives Up Post at Cabinet Helm.

LEBRUN PICKS SUCCESSOR

Finance Minister to Form 'War Cabinet'; Daladier Spurns Chance to Try Again.

(By Associated Press)

PARIS — Premier Edouard Daladier resigned today amid criticism of France's prosecution of the war against Germany and President Albert LeBrun asked Finance Minister Paul Reynaud to form a "war cabinet."

The president called in Reynaud, who has been notably successful at his finance post, after Daladier's Radical-Socialist party announced the retiring premier's refusal to attempt a new combination.

Daladier declined in conformity with "parliamentary tradition," it was announced. That meant he interpreted as an expression of disapproval of his conduct of the war a minority vote of confidence which the chamber of deputies had given him earlier in the day.

Although the vote was 239 to 1 in his favor, there were more than 300 abstentions in the total chamber membership of 551.

The vote was accompanied by a call for acceleration and extension of the war against Germany—similar to an earlier mandate from the senate.

Daladier had given notice that he intended to revise his government and it still was possible that LeBrun, after accepting the collective resignation, would call on Daladier to form a new, streamlined war government.

In such event, today's resignation would stand merely as a formality—an interim episode in the Daladier administration. Besides the premiership, Daladier has held the national defense, war and foreign affairs portfollos.

The cabinet met early this morning, six hours after the chamber's reluctant vote of confidence.

The session, at the war ministry, lasted a half hour and then Daladier and all his ministers, except one who is in London on government business, went to Elysee palace where Daladier presented the resignation to LeBrun.

LeBrun at once arranged for the customary consultations on a

New Slate Falls Hamper Rescue Work In Ohio Mine

CREWS SEEKING PATHS AROUND TONS OF ROCK

Congressional Investigation of Disaster Foreseen, New Bill Forecast.

(By Associated Press)

ST. CLAIRSVILLE—Hampered by foul air and new falls of slate in the explosion-shattered Willow Grove coal mine, rescue workers predicted today that recovery of the 52 men officially reported still entombed would not be completed for several days.

Eleven bodies were removed yesterday, bringing to 19 the number found since Saturday. Two of the victims entered the mine in a rescue attempt and perished from gas fumes.

George A. Strain, state director of industrial relations, declared after inspecting the mine that "thousands of tons of rock" prevented the progress of rescue work.

"It will be days before the work is completed because of the devastating effects of the blast," he said.

Meanwhile, a congressional investigation of the explosion was in prospect.

Chairman Smith (D., W Va.) of the house committee on mines and mining approved an inquiry by a sub-committee studying legislation to require annual federal inspection of all mines. Smith suggested that the probe be delayed until all bodies were removed from the mine.

Rep. Bradley (R., Mich.) declared, however, that he would come here immediately to inspect the mine regardless of what other members of the sub-committee decided.

Rep. Keller (D., Ill.), co-author of the Neely-Keller mine inspection bill, cited the Willow Grove blast and the Bartley, W. Va., explosion in which 91 men died a few weeks ago to support his plea that the house approve the legislation. The senate passed the measure in January.

"Every one of these disasters, where great masses of men are killed in a single accident, can be prevented," he said.

Three bodies located late yesterday afternoon were identified as Joseph W. Kresach of Fairpoint, Andy Rudol of Neffs and Andy Hobart of Midway. Last night the body of Andy Valocik of Neffs was recovered.

Two men previously listed as missing were reported safe yesterday by officials of the Hanna Coal company, owners of the mine. They were Charles Klusky of Fairpoint, who was rescued shortly after the explosion, and Clarence Gillespie of Neffs, who failed to work Saturday.

Lifts Interdict Imposed Against Cleveland Church

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Holy Thursday mass will re-open Holy Redeemer Catholic church, closed by a month-old interdict that followed parishioners' rebellion against selection of a new priest.

Archbishop Joseph Schrembs lifted his interdict against 1,500 members of the Italian-American parish as they expressed repentance at a meeting arranged at their request.

Each pledged unqualified submission to lawful ecclesiastical authority and repeated after the Archbishop "the act of submission or absolution."

"I come to tell you I forgive you; to tell you I'm glad," the 74-year-old churchman said, tears in his eyes. "By authority of my office I absolve you from the interdict.

I'm glad you realize today we can't govern the church by rioting or by rebellion."

The outcome permits parishioners to participate again in sacraments of the church and to hold the impressive Holy week and Easter services. Church officials indicated the parochial school, also closed a month, would be re-opened soon. Most of the pupils have been attending nearby public schools.

Shouting men, women and children had barred the Rev. Vincent Caruso, pastor designated by Archbishop Schrembs, from the church three times.

Father Caruso, an assistant at another church, will remain there, diocesan officials said.

Three chapters of Junior Red Cross, the Hayes, Grant and Central schools of Shelby, raised 92 dozen eggs—1104 big, snow white, perfect eggs—and brought them to the Children's home yesterday. The crates were hand-decorated in Easter colors with original drawings, and on top were candy ducks, chickens and rabbits, one for each child at the home.

CENSUS ATTACK STRIKES SNAG

Senate Stymies Tobey as It Gives Attention to Two Major Measures.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Determination of senate leaders to dispose of two major bills appeared today to have stymied the resolution of Sen. Charles W. Tobey, (R. N. H.) apposing personal income questions in the 1940 census.

Senate Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley announced he would resist all attempts to bring the census resolution to the floor until action has been taken on the agriculture department appropriation bill and a measure extending for three years the reciprocal trade treaty program.

There are less than two weeks remaining before census enumerators begin their house-to-house calls on April 2.

Barkley's announcement was an answer to a request to Tobey that a definite date be set before April 1 for consideration of his resolution.

Barkley replied that the reciprocal trade bill is slated for action immediately after the agriculture bill, and added that "no one can tell" how much debate will arise on either measure.

Barkley's announcement came as the senate commerce committee favored Tobey's proposal in a mildly-worded report. It said that constitutional questions and the bill of rights were not involved, as Tobey had contended but that there was "considerable doubt" as to whether the questions were authorized by congressional law.

DEMAND REMOVAL OF CROMWELL FOR HIS BLAST AT NAZI REGIME

WASHINGTON —(U P)— Congressional demands for removal from office of James H. R. Cromwell, American minister to Canada, today followed his criticism of American isolationists and denunciation of Germany.

Sen. Bennett C. Clark, D., Mo., a member of the senate foreign relations committee, and Rep. George H. Tinkham, R., Mass., a member of the house foreign affairs committee, both demanded that Cromwell be recalled because of his address at Toronto yesterday.

"Cromwell is apparently imitating Ambassador (Walter Hines) Page in London during the last war," Tinkham said. "Ambassador Page was a confessed traitor to his country and should have been removed from office in disgrace.

"Mr. Cromwell deserves the same fate. If he can not be an American, he has no place in American official life."

Clark, who described Cromwell's remarks as "an outrageous and disgraceful breach of office," also called for his removal from office.

Cromwell, husband of the wealthy Doris Duke and recently appointed minister to Canada, charged at a joint meeting of the Canadian and Empire clubs that Germany "frankly and openly seeks to destroy" the institutions, social and economic order upon which the United States government is founded. He repeated a previous statement that he believed the allies were "fighting for the perpetuation of individual liberty and freedom."

Cromwell said that he was willing "to risk my official head" upon his statement.

TRIAL OPENS

27 Witnesses to Testify in Loudonville Burglary Case.

ASHLAND—The first of 29 witnesses took the stand in common pleas court today to testify in the case of John Sopka, Akron, who is charged with the burglary and attempted safe breaking at the Loudonville Farmers' Equity exchange warehouse in January.

The parade of witnesses began this afternoon after the panel of seven men and five women had visited the scene of the crime with Ashland County Prosecutor A. Ross Siverling.

Siverling's request for the trip in order for the jurors to "familiarize" themselves with the location was granted by the court following the seating of the jury this morning.

Sopka was one of the three men indicted by the grand jury three weeks ago on a charge of burglary and attempted safe breaking. He pleaded innocent and asked for a jury trial.

LEAVES THIRD TERM QUESTION STILL MYSTERY

Washington Hears Donahey Will Support White for Ohio Governor Nomination.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — The voting public knew today that President Roosevelt most vigorously denies ever having raised the religious issue against Postmaster General James A. Farley, a Catholic—but it still does not know whether the president will be a third-term candidate.

The Roosevelt press conference pronouncement on the Farley question yesterday was subjected to closest overnight scrutiny by politicians of all leanings. Today, there was no semblance of agreement concerning its effect on the 1940 presidential outlook. Everything continued to hinge on Mr. Roosevelt's ultimate decision regarding his own candidacy.

Friends of Farley looked upon the White House statement as "a peace gesture" which came just in time, because of a growing furore within the Democratic party.

New Dealers, presumably more interested in re-electing the president than in Farley's candidacy, said the Roosevelt repudiation of the religious issue would fail to help the postmaster general's cause.

DONAHEY FOR WHITE

WASHINGTON— (U.P.) —Friends of Sen. Vic Donahey reported today that he intends to throw his personal political prestige to the support of former Governor George White, of Marietta, in the Democratic Ohio gubernatorial contest.

It was understood that although Donahey has kept silent thus far regarding the eight-man race for the gubernatorial contest, he expects to announce his preference for White some time before the May 14 primary election.

It was a matter of speculation here how much any Donahey endorsement of White could be interpreted as a blow at former Gov. Martin L. Davey, another contender for the nomination. In the 1938 general election campaign, however, when Davey, beaten by Charles Sawyer for the nomination refused support for the latter, Donahey publicly rebuked him.

A statement on the race for governor from the senator, who has announced his retirement plans, would not conflict with his decision to quit public life. In his announcement of an intention to retire at the end of his present term Donahey promised that he would speak out when he thought it advisable on public issues.

NEED ADJUSTING

179 Scales, Gas Pumps Found Inaccurate in County.

Richland county merchants generally are honest fellows when it comes to weighing and measuring goods for their customers, Harry K. Koch, county deputy sealer of weights and measures, found in his annual inspection of scales, gasoline pumps, and containers.

Koch's annual report, submitted to County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe showed that only 179 devices, or approximately eight per cent of all those tested, needed adjustment.

He examined 2,220 scales, pumps and measuring devices, ordering adjustments where needed and placing seals of approval on them after corrections were made.

His report listed 538 gasoline pumps in the county, showing a rapid growth in the number or filling stations in recent years. Seventy of the pumps were measuring inaccurately.

Only 12 of 100 wagon and truck scales examined required adjustment.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—"The House of the Seven Gables." Screenplay by Lester Cole and Harold Greene from Nathaniel Hawthorne novel. Directed by Joe May. Principals: George Saunders, Margaret Lindsay, Vincent Price, Dick Foran, Nan Grey, Cecil Kellaway, Alan Napier, Gilbert Emery, Miles Mander, Charles Trowbridge.

The Pyncheons, and Maule's Curse, and New England in the early 19th century—here they are for the first time on the screen.

A story obviously difficult of adaptation for pictures, it had tempted no film factory until Universal, with its special fondness for tales of atmosphere, undertook the job.

The vast, gloomy old Pyncheon house, built on land wickedly mulcted from innocent Maule in the witchcraft era, is effectively presented. In an eerie rainstorm arrives Jaffrey Pyncheon (Sanders) from Boston at his father's summons—they're going to sell the old homestead to satisfy brother Clifford's just demand for his share of the wasted family fortune. Clifford (Price) is a musician in love with Cousin Hepzibah (Lindsay) who shares his scorn for "family tradition" and superstition.

When the dose of "atmosphere" has been served, the film settles down to its melodramatic plot. Cliff is accused of murdering their father by sweet brother Jaffrey, who knows all along he's innocent. Jaffrey wants to keep the old house to search for legendary treasure supposed to be hidden about. With Cliff sent up for life, gold-greedy Jaff is set for tearing the house apart, but Cousin Hep proves to be the real heiress and boots him out.

While the house falls to pieces, Cousin Hep sours in solitude and remains faithful to Cliff. Hep lets rooms and opens a shop to keep going, while wicked Jaff prospers. Boomer Bolgiano (Foran) and pretty Cousin Phoebe (Grey) brighten the atmosphere with romance and in the end Jaff gets his, Cliff is freed and sour Hep practically blooms again.

As a long-time fugitive from Hawthorne novels I can't report how closely this adheres to its original, but I suspect rather frequent resemblances, pardonable, if accidental. It's not a bad picture, and at times it's pretty good. Price, apparently unrestrained, hams enthusiastically as a youth, mellows with age. Sanders, too, could have stood a halter, but if that Lindsay girl isn't careful she's going to be a Grade-A actress.

"STRANGE CARGO" Joan Crawford, Clark Gable, Ian Hunter, Peter Lorre, Paul Lukas, Albert Dekker.

A Christ-like man from nowhere (Hunter) regenerates a gang of toughies escaping from a penal island with a tough cafe moll. Good job, though heavy now and then, even if you don't care for this supernatural business. Hunter fine. Crawford interesting.

"HOUSE ACROSS THE BAY." Joan Bennett, George Raft, Walter Pidgeon, Lloyd Nolan, Gladys George, June Knight.

Good cast, acting, in a yarn about the big shot who went to Alcatraz, his ever-lovin' wife, and the old double-cross.

Joan, dressed to kill, displays her singing voice as well as wardrobe.

"BLACK FRIDAY." Boris Karloff, Bela Lugosi, Stanley Ridges.

That "killer's brain" has been transplanted again—this time by Surgeon Karloff to save the life of friend Ridges. Ex-monster Karloff ought to know better, after "Frankenstein" — but Universal's string of shockers must not be broken and "Black Friday" is a fair enough sample. Ridges does the acting.

'Vendol' Helped Me From the First Says Local Inspector

Responsible resident gives favorite medicine full credit for relieving many troubles due to constipation. Says all should try it.

MR. GAIL KERN.

"Anyone who knows me will recall the misery I had to go through with during the past few years so, it was an astonishing thing to find that Vendol truly helped me from the first day I began taking it," says Mr. Gail Kern, of Pawnee Avenue, Mansfield, Inspector at the Tappan Stove Company.

"My bowels never seemed to work freely, naturally or thoroughly unless I took strong medicines then, this left me worse than before and seemed this sapped my strength and energy.

"Then lately seemed most everything went wrong. My meals distressed me with indigestion. gas was so bad that my breath came short and the "heartburn" was awful. I'd awaken every morning with a headache, feeling dizzy, tongue coated and my muscles feeling tired and achy and the pains down through my legs tormented me almost daily.

"About four weeks ago I began to take Vendol and the little Vendol laxative tablets. The first few doses started my bowels moving nicely, so I've kept taking it regularly and it has acted like a charm and I have a different story to tell.

"I enjoy every mouthful of food now with none of the former suffering, no gas, bloating, sourness, awaken with a clear head and no signs of the aches and pains. Yes, that is what relief from constipation did for me and Vendol made me feel like a new person so. I believe it can do the same for others that is why I'm glad to recommend Vendol to the public."

Vendol is sold by most all leading druggists everywhere and is highly recommended here by Central Drug Store, corner Main and 4th streets. Come in today and have the Vendol Man explain all about this marvelous compound.

Sound Film Tells Rotarians About Credit Activities

Use of a sound slide film in explaining steps connected with establishing and maintaining retail credit provided unique entertainment at Tuesday's meeting of the Rotary club, held in the new club room at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

The program was presented by V. H. Lodde, manager of the Mansfield credit bureau, assisted by Harold Garrison. Pictures shown on the screen were co-ordinated with a transcribed explanation of methods employed by credit rating bureaus associated with the national organization in compiling and filing information regarding applicants for credit

Advantages of established credit were explained and it was revealed that there are now more than 100,000 cards in the files of the Mansfield bureau containing information on the credit standing of residents of this city and trading territory.

Carl O. Russell was program chairman for the meeting and group singing was directed by LeMoine Derr with Maurice Stretch at the piano.

Pupils Like New Schools, Set Best Attendance Marks

Mansfield's new John Simpson and Johnny Appleseed junior high schools are so attractive to pupils that those schools had the best attendance in the city last month, reports to W. L. Miller, superintendent of schools, showed today.

The Johnny Appleseed school headed the list of 13 schools with an attendance of 95.6 per cent for February. The John Simpson school was second with 95.4 per cent. Both were opened for classes Jan. 29.

The John Simpson building had the worst truancy record, however, with 12 of the 28 truancy cases reported last month. Johnny Appleseed school had eight and the other 11 schools only eight.

In third place in attendance were the Newman and Western Avenue schools, each with 94.8 per cent. Average attendance for all the schools was 92 per cent, slightly below the January figure.

There were 2,997 pupils who were neither absent nor tardy in February. Total enrollment was 6,291.

One way of keeping our feet on the ground

What a changed world it was for the first balloonist. He saw hills and valleys level out. He saw dark clouds serving a thrilling purpose when they reflected a gorgeous sunset. He got a new perspective.

Wise is the man who takes a broad view of today's events and keeps them always in true focus. He makes no mountain out of a rumor and sees no valley as deep as the despair of the pessimists. He is confident that he can take the hurdles as they come.

Such a man has the will to work—and the good judgment to relax when work is done. Moderate in all things, in his thoughts and in his activities, he is living —really living—with and for his family and among his friends. (He is unusual if he doesn't usually serve Budweiser.) He is, indeed, the backbone of America.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—(AP)—A half dozen big shot fight managers are camping on the trail of Ray Robinson, lightweight toast of the Golden Gloves. . . . Exclusive: Fort Worth is going after the 1941 national golf open in a big way. . . . Joe McCarthy (who should know) puts an unhesitating O. K. on Hank Greenberg as an outfielder. . . . You can't convince a lot of folks that Lee Savold's strenuous weight reduction campaign didn't flatten him with the flu.

NOT SO WACKY.

This may not be as screwy as it sounds . . . "Hot Potato" Luke Hamlin is learning to throw bad balls, the better to help the Dodgers win this season . . . Luke's "Home run ball" is notorious . . . he has mastered this pitch as has no other national league elbower . . . in 270 innings last summer he served up no less than 27 round trip pitches—for an incredible average of one every ten heats.

Rumor: Tom Lieb, formerly of Loyola (Los Angeles) talked with Florida . . . There was plenty of banging around in the Duke-Clemson practice game last week which Duke won, 26-0 . . . (Clemson, which thought it had 'em, feels pretty low about the score) . . . Everybody who visits the Cardinals camp talks about how well Bill Delancy is looking.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

Whitney Martin, Associated Press: "It was St. Patrick's day to the rest of the country, but it was Groundhog Day to the rest of the National leaguers who popped out of the holes in which they had been hiding since the last world's series to yell defiance."

* * *

CORRECTION: Sammy Angott and Davey Day will not fight in Louisville derby eve. Everything was set, but Day's manager balked at the terms . . . Pete Coscarart got his all-star game pay-off hit with a bat given him a few minutes earlier by Mel Ott of the Giants . . . Bless us if the coast hasn't come up with a contented baseball manager—Johnny Frederick who admits he's feeling pretty good about every thing . . . but then Johnny's an old Dodger, you know.

OBSERVATION WARD.

Two Miami dog track owners have bought a race horse . . . and her name, of all things, is dog house.

Kautz Marked Man In Cage Tourney

CHICAGO—(AP)—Sure-shooting Wibs Kautz will be a marked man tonight when the Chicago Bruins clash with the Harlem Globe trotters for the national pro basketball championship.

Kautz is the spark plug of the Bruins' attack which carried the team through three games to the titular test against the Harlem five, clever machine of colored stars. Kautz, exstar of Loyola university of Chicago, scored 48 points in the last two nights, 24 in each game. He connected for eight field goals and eight free throws last night as the Bruins mowed down the Washington, D. C., Heurichs, 46 to 36. Harlem qualified for the finals with an equally impressive 34 to 24 triumph over the Syracuse, N. Y., Reds.

Syracuse and Washington meet in the preliminary game tonight for third place honors.

M'KINLEY DEFENDS TITLE IN SCHOLASTIC SWIM MEET

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—The usual hotly contested battle for points is expected at Pitt's 26th annual interscholastic swim meet Saturday with new faces challenging the defending champion McKinley High of Canton, O.

McKinley will be back with a strong nucleus of the outfit that won last spring. Strong Vincent of Erie, as always will put up a strong fight for honors.

Sets Entry Pace

Marion Is Sending 11 Boxers To Battle in Annual J. A. C. Tourney.

By CHARLES MARTIN

MARION is leading the field today among out-of-town cities sending fighting cubs to participate in the third annual Junior Association of Commerce A. A. U. boxing tournament opening in the Mansfield Senior high gymnasium Tuesday night.

Some 20 youthful leather slingers, 11 of them representing the Olympic A. C. of Marion have already filed registration cards and at the pace entries are pouring in tourney officials are predicting a record entry.

This year's classic will find only one Mansfield champion returning to add more prestige to his record. Although he hasn't entered his card yet, it is reported today that Jake Zacharias, who won the middleweight title last spring, will be after the light-heavyweight crown.

The Olympic A. C. will send its most promising prospects after six of the eight championships. Four Marion lads are fighting in the lightweight division which will be wide open since Beauford Glover, of Mansfield, Cleveland Golden Gloves open champion, will not return to defend his title.

Five neighboring cities have mittsters in the tourney, which is scheduled to run Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday nights. They are Crestline, Newark, Loudonville, Willard in addition to Marion.

Eddie Talley will head the Crestline A. C. group. Talley, who was stopped in his first bout in the American Legion amateur meet at Columbus last night, is seeking the 112-pound title. Paul Carbetta, of Mansfield, the defending flyweight champion, is not entered.

Al Sauer, Ontario high student, fighting under the Friendly House banner, is out to annex the title relinquished by Zacharias.

While Bus Doehla, settlement trainer, has not officially announced how many Friendly House boys will be in the meet, but has a number of clever youngsters.

A Loudonville boxer, who lost in an opening round match in the Cleveland tourney is that city's lone entry. He is Robert Miller, a lightweight.

Paul M. Eliot, Jess Willard and Ray Morgan of Mansfield are the judges for the tourney, Harry Case, judge committee chairman, stated today. John Eichinger is the referee for the three-night meet and the official time-keeper will be Sam Fox.

* * *

Reserved seat ducats may be purchased at Shoemaker's drug store. Park avenue west, while general admission tickets are being sold by J. A. C. members.

BIKE RACE OPENS

COLUMBUS—Canada's famous Peden brothers, "Torchy" and "Doug," topped the field of 18 riders setting out on a six-day race around the state fairgrounds coliseum tonight. Five nations were represented on the entry list.

The players—Raymond, Leroy, James, Junior, Dwane, James and Dick—are brothers, nephews, uncles and cousins. They played on various high school teams the past season.

Favorites Advance In Cage Meet

St. Edward's Cagers Top All-Stars to Gain Final Tonight.

THE youthful St. Edwards quintet, highly touted favorites in the Friendly House Junior Basketball tournament, moved into the final last night by defeating the Mansfield All-Stars in a hard fought game to the tune of 46 to 39.

Woodbury of the All-Stars led the scoring with 8 baskets and three fouls, but failed to bring his team through to victory.

St. Edwards five will meet the Golden Flashes in the first game tonight and the winner of that game will take on the Daleys Juniors, who walloped the Boy Rangers last night in a one-sided contesa by a 38 to 11 score.

Thin-Clads Battle for Team Berths in Tryouts Thursday.

By GEORGE SATTLER

COACH Smilin' Harry Mehock is not smiling quite as much this week.

With the important Pittsburgh indoor meet only a few weeks away, the Mansfield high track coach has final team tryouts coming up Thursday and three of his best men are laid up with bad colds.

Mehock isn't too pessimistic, however. Although he has only five seniors on the whole squad, Harry says he has discovered some new talent that may more than fill the holes left in ranks by graduation last year.

Smilin' Harry is pinning a lot of his hopes on John Caudle, star Akron Garfield runner, who came to Mansfield last fall. Caudle, who does about everything there is to do in a track meet, runs one of the best quarter miles in the business.

Of course, Mansfield has Fred Atwater, district hurdles champion, who is out to break a few records this year. And Howard Hershey, now on the sick list, has been pole vaulting around the 12 foot mark in the early practices.

In the sprint division, Mehock has a fast sophomore in Elroy Jones, who has shown plenty of ability for a newcomer. With a little more experience Jones may develop into a topnotch dash man.

No, Harry isn't too gloomy about his prospects for this year, even with his present tough luck.

Gains Second Place In ABC

Detroit Office Worker Hits 672 in Singles.

DETROIT—(INS)—The scoring standard among American bowling congress championship keglers today was given another boost as Detroiters accounted for three changes in leadership. The home towners took over two second place spots and one seventh place slot.

One hundred and twenty-five pounder Tom Neale, 37-year-old office worker, crashed to the fore with a big 672 in the singles competition, rolling 206-256-210, to move into second position in his event.

He was followed by Harvey Odgers, 32-year-old shipping clerk, only a 172 average bowler, who put together runs of 652-583-601 for a 204 average, a 1836 total and runner-up place in the all-events standings.

Tom Stodola and Ed Juntunen, Finnish-American keglers collaborated for a 1209 total to take seventh spot in the two man competition.

Ousts Koy In Battle

Casey, Hamlin and Wyatt Dodgers' 'Big Three' on Pitching Hill.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

CLEARWATER, Fla.—(U.P.)—There's more conversation, palaver and popping off in the camp of the Brooklyn Dodgers than in any other major league base in Florida. President Larry MacPhail and Manager Leo Durocher are indefatiable. Even when you beat them, you can't stop them from taking.

MacPhail has spent something like $375,000 to corral talent for the Dodgers during his regime, and he has carte blanche to pop the rubber band off his bankroll any time he can locate a ball player that might help his club. It is not without the sound realms of reasoning to envision the Dodgers landing Joe Medwick, the most dissatisfied ball player in the big show, though a combination of circumstances.

Rating the Dodgers strictly on what they have won, they seem reasonably assured of third place, the first division spot they grabbed last year after six straight years in second division.

The Dodgers have the league's best infield, capable pitching, and adequate catching. Their crying need is a power hitter. Their outfield is still a headache but is improved over last year.

The tipoff on the outfield is the fact that Ernie Koy, the club's best outfielder last season, is going to have to hustle to make the grade this year.

Joe Vosmik, bought from the Red Sox for $25,000, has ousted Koy from left. If Vosmick has a big year at the plate, it'll make a tremendous difference in the Dodgers.

Roy Cullenbine, signed for $25,000 after he was cut adrift from the Tigers by Commissioner Landis, and Koy are battling for the center field job. Cullenbine looked great afield but he hasn't started to hit. Jimmy Ripple, the Giant castoff, looks like he'll be the right-fielder.

The dark horse in the outfield setup is Charley Gilbert, who's played only one year of professional baseball and won't be 21 until July 8. If he stays, he'll be the regular center fielder. But he's too bright a prospect to sit on the bench and he may be sent back to Nashville for another year's seasoning. At most, he's only a year away from the big leagues.

The infield is something to rave about defensively with Camilli at first, Coscarrart at second, Durocher at short and Lavagetto at third. Added to this quartet the Dodgers have the $75,000 beauty, Pee Wee Reese, and reliable Johnny Hudson, sought by several other clubs.

Reese is a major league shortstop right now but there's some question about his hitting. Durocher's plan is to play 100 games at short himself, and let Reese play the remaining 54.

Hugh Casey, Luke Hamlin and Whit Wyatt will be the Dodgers' big three. Casey looks like he'll be the top winner. Hamlin won 20 last year and is expected to come close again. Wyatt, still limping from a knee operation in November, may not be ready as soon as Durocher hopes, but there's little doubt about him being a winner as soon as he can pitch.

Van Mungo is in better spirits than at any time since his arm trouble started. Tex Carleton, reclaimed from Milwaukee, looks as if he has recovered the old effectiveness in his side arm sinker. Rubber-armed Vito Tamulis will shoulder the left-handed pitching chores. Fred Fritzsimmons, signed to a joint pitching-coaching job, and Forrest Pressnell will share the spot-pitching assignments with Carleton. Wes Ferrell is hustling to stage a comeback but he has his work cut out for him. Max Macon and Al Hollingsworth, two other lefties, are trying to hang on.

Babe Phelps will be the No. 1 catcher with Gus Mancuso from the Cubs the No. 2 man. Chris Hartje and Herman Franks from the Cards are battling for the No. 3 job.

Slated to Oppose Senators Today.

ORLANDO, Fla.—(INS)—Al Milnar, Al Smith and Don Pulford were slated to demonstrate their pitching prowess today as the Cleveland Indians arrived in Orlando to resume their two-game series with the Washington Senators. The Tribe beat the Senators in Ft. Myers last Friday with Eisenstat, Zuber and Humphries hurling shutout ball

The Indians lost their first training season game yesterday at Winter Haven to the New York Giants with the winners getting three runs in the first two innings and one in the seventh for a 4-2 victory.

Cliff Melton was credited with the win, while Harry Eisenstat was hard hit in the opening frames to be charged with the loss.

Hitting of both teams was light as the flingers continued to hold the early season advantage over the swatters. Only two blows were good for extra bases and both were hit by the Giants. Stewart smacked a triple, a drive which "Soup" Campbell misjudged, and Witek punched a double.

The Tribe outhit the Giants, 7 to 6, three of their blows coming in the eighth when they scored their two runs.

Reds Turn Back Detroit, 11 to 9.

LAKELAND, Fla. —(U.P.)— The Cincinnati Reds were to play the Phillies at Miami Beach today before beginning their four-day trip to Havana.

Home runs by the veterans, Frank McCormick and Billy Myers helped the Reds to an 11 to 9 victory over the Detroit Tigers here yesterday. The Reds have a record of three wins in nine exhibition games this spring.

The homes came in the eighth inning and were good for three runs apiece.

Mike McCormick, Redleg rookie, continued to sparkle in left field but made his 12th trip to the plate without getting a hit. He was at bat three officials times yesterday. He has found curve balls hard to swat.

The pitching was weak on both sides. The National league champs got 12 hits off Pitchers Bridges and McKain of the Tigers, and Detroit got to Pitchers Turner and Thompson for 13 safe hits.

Browns' Boss Says Pitchers Good as Infielder Make Them

By FELIX R. McKNIGHT

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. — (AP) — Not exactly overloaded with flawless pitching, Manager Fred Haney of the St. Louis Browns, a man of great logic, nevertheless believs his probiem goes a bit deeper than the mound.

Brother Haney is one of baseball's distinctive characters. He believs he has a fair mound staff, even for a bunch of basement dwellers. He further contends that his pitching staff is just about what his infield makes it.

"Didn't I see our pitchers lose ball games last season, usually in the late innings after we had built up a lead, because maybe we were just a trifle slow on a double play, or could have stopped a hard one that got through?" he queried

"Maybe that's going to change this summer. We have a more experienced infield now, one that can function just a little better—just enough to make a big difference in our pitching. We have good pitchers — Eldon Auker, Vernon Kennedy, Roxie Lawson, Howard Mills, Bob Harris, Jackie Kramer and some fine relief men in Nathan Andrews, Big John Whitehead, Slick Coffman, Johnny Niggeling, and Bill Trotter."

The infield to back them up? Quiet George McQuinn is a solid first basemen who can hit—better than his .316 of last season. On second base will be either Johnny Berardino, the rookie sensation of last year who has acquired polish, or Don Heffner, the veteran ex-Yankee.

If Alan Strange, voted the Pacific Coast's most valuable player of 1939, doesn't kick up a commotion around shortstop and hit somewhere in the vicinity of his .335 of last season, Haney is guessing wrong. Old reliable Harlond Clift at third base is looking crisp again after last year's unexplainable slip to a .270 average.

"Now why shouldn't we get better with that bunch around," asks Haney.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y.—(AP)—Frankie Wallace, 140½, of Cleveland, defeated Primo Flores, 136¼, of Puerto Rico, in an eight-round bout last night.

Training Camp Notes

(By Associated Press)

BRADENTON, Fla. — The New York Yankees still are not worried about Old Father Time. Though the present Yank pitching corps is hardly wearing out, Marvin Breuer and Tommy Reis, the righthand rookies, up from Kansas City, have given the champions cause to cheer loudest. The two combined to shut out the Bees yesterday.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—The belief that the Giants will have as good a pitching staff as any National league club continues to gain weight. Latest to give Manager Bill Terry cause to smile is Cliff Melton, the slim southpaw, who pitched four innings of shutout ball yesterday in blanking the Cleveland Indians.

LAKELAND, Fla.—Back at the helm after an illness of several days, Manager Del Baker of the Detroit Tigers said he was especially pleased at the manner in which Hank Greenberg cavorted in the outfield against Cincinnati.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla.—There will be no escaping "power" from the National league if President Gerald Nugent of the Phillies can help it. "I'm going to hold up waivers on every promising player in our league and no one who shows anything will get away from us. The teams will have to start cutting soon and we're going to get 'em."

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—Ray Mack's failure to hit has the Cleveland Indians worried. The second sacker has collected only four hits in 25 times at bat. The Tribe plays Washington at Orlando today.

* * *

TAMPA, Fla — Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cincinnati Reds says the reason he isn't playing Lonnie Frey is because he wants him to gain weight but everyone else thinks he's trying to give Eddie Joost a chance at the second base job.

MOSCOW SPURNS DEFENSE PACT

Asserts Plan for Scandinavian Agreement Would Be Aimed Against Russia.

Soviet, guiding body of the Russian parliament, last night followed up the Finnish parliament's ratification of the treaty with its own formal approval.

Finnish Cabinet's Resignation Due.

HELSINKI, Finland—(U.P.)—The cabinet which guided Finland through its war with Russia and accepted perforce the peace treaty which Rusisa dictated, was expected to resign today upon receipt of news from Moscow that the exchange of treaty ratification had been effected.

It was said that only if the delegates, led by J. K. Paasikivi, who arrived at Moscow yesterday with the Finnish parliament's official ratification, remained to work out details of the treaty provisions would the cabinet remain in office even temporarily and that in any event a new ministry would face parliament at its next session next Wednesday.

The public had been prepared for the resignation and no sensation was expected, because the reorganization was regarded as technical rather than political.

Premier Risto Ryti was regarded as the leading candidate for premier.

Wartime Foreign Minister V. A. Tanner was generally expected not to take the foreign portfolio in the new cabinet. Minister without portfolio Paasikivi, who led the delegation to Moscow, was mentioned as a possibility.

WILL DECREASE CORN ACREAGE

Ohio Farmers Also Expected to Cut Oats, Tobacco Crops.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio farmers will plant 3,220,000 acres of corn this year, 6 per cent less than in 1939, according to United States department of agriculture estimates.

Prospective decreases in the spring planting of other crops included oats, 7 per cent, and burley tobacco, 8 per cent. Soybeans were listed for a 35 per cent increase; barley, 20 per cent; spring wheat, 20 per cent, and hay, 2 per cent. Potato acreage will be the same as last year.

U. S. SHIES AT 'PEACE' MOVES

Government Adopts Policy of Keeping Far Away From European Maneuvers.

planation, according to most reliable sources:

To act as an intermediary in the presentation of peace proposals entails a tremendous responsibility. In the first place, the intermediary invariably creates the impression that he regards the proposals as worth while conveying from one enemy to another.

Besides throwing the prestige of the American government behind a set of peace terms, any such overture confronts a belligerent nation with the gravest of choices.

The belligerent may not feel inclined to accept the offer. If he rejects it, he rejects not only the enemy's terms but also the good offices of the United States, possibly his friend.

He does not wish to offend his friend, or to appear responsible for continuing a war. But at the same time, for own interests or what he believes the interests of the world, he cannot accept the peace terms offered. Even to discuss them might give an appearance of weakness.

The best-informed sources here insist that Mr. Roosevelt will hold aloof from peace initiatives until he gets hold of what he considers a good and lasting peace.

REPAYS FORMER KIND ACTION

Neighbor Gives Shelter to Family of Son's Rescuer.

COLUMBUS —(AP)— One kind deed deserves another. Last May, Mrs. Raymond Durham saw a neighbor's child struck by an automobile and rushed him to a hospital in her automobile. Physicians said the boy might have bled to death had there been further delay.

Last night, the Durham home was destroyed by fire. Mr. and Mrs. Durham and their six children were given shelter in the home of Reid Rohr, the neighbor whose child Mrs. Durham saved.

THEATERS

WARNER BROTHERS are determined to make the public take Ann Sheridan and like her, whether or no. Not in recent years has an actress been so determinedly thrust at picture goers—well, not since the Hearst campaign to popularize Marion Davies, who was under contract to Cosmopolitan pictures. Every Hearst publication in the world was practically given over to publicising Miss Davies. Now comes the Brothers Warner with a picture of Miss Sheridan in practically every magazine from the Youth's Companion to Movie Mirror. She is deluged with leading roles and the best writers, with no less than James Cagney for her next co-star. But after all, the public will have the deciding vote and whether or not Miss Sheridan, whose talent is debatable, is a box office hit, depends upon the cash customers and not the Warner Brothers. She'll be seen next in "It All Came True" and after that in "Torrid Zone."

"He Married His Wife"

When a man looks about for his own successor as husband to his wife, he never looks for a handsome and interesting man. On the contrary. And so Joel McCrea who wants to get his ex-wife married to someone else so that he won't have to pay alimony, but when his ex-wife picks on tall, handsome Cesar Romero, the story takes a turn for greater comedy. Nancy Kelly is the wife and Mary Boland and Roland Young are in the cast. The picture is at the Ohio.

American Melodies.

The story of Victor Herbert's melodies—which are among the immortals of strictly American music—is told in "The Great Victor Herbert" which is on the double-feature bill at the Majestic. Many of the Herbert songs are worked into the picture, with Allan Jones and Mary Martin singing most of them. Walter Connolly is seen as Herbert. "Knights of the Range," with Russell Hayden, Victor Jory and Jean Parker, is the second feature.

Court Room Drama.

Lloyd Nolan is seen as Joe Monday, an unknown vagrant who walks into a court room, lays down a gun and confesses he is guilty of the murder for which the defendant is being tried. But he will tell nothing else, and it isn't until a number of witnesses are examined at his trial that the truth comes out. The Ritz bill also has "The Night of Nights," a romantic comedy with Pat O'Brien, Olympe Bradna and Roland Young.

Another Prison Story.

Another prison drama is told in "Buried Alive," at the Park. The story revolves around a convict who is a trusty and who becomes embroiled in a violent quarrel in a beer tavern, thereby bringing down the wrath of the Governor and the Parole Board on his head. There is a romance involving a prison nurse. James Newill as Renfrew of the Royal Mounted, gets his man in "Murder On The Yukon."

"Beau Geste" Refilmed.

The dramatic story of "Beau Geste" is refilmed with Gary Cooper, Ray Milland and Robert Preston as the three Geste brothers whose fortunes take them to the Foreign Legion on a strange knight errantry. It is an unusual theme of brother love and the love of three boys for a woman who had mothered them. "What a Life" is the rollicking tale of Henry Aldrich and his penchant for getting into trouble. These two films make up the Majestic bill.

Financial Report of Richland County

For the Year Ending December 31, 1939.

CERTIFICATE OF THE COUNTY AUDITOR

Auditor's Office, Richland County,
Mansfield, Ohio, March 12, 1940.

I, Norman L. Wolfe, Auditor of Richland County, Ohio, do hereby certify that the following report is correct.

NORMAN L. WOLFE,
Richland County Auditor.

Court of Common Pleas, Richland County,
Mansfield, Ohio, March 12, 1940.

I certify that the following report is in compliance with the law.

C. H. HUSTON,
Judge of the Court of Common Pleas.

EXPLANATION OF FINANCIAL REPORT

GENERAL STATISTICS OF RICHLAND COUNTY, OHIO

Population, 1930—65,902.
Tax value 1939 duplicate—$93,000,000.00.
Tax levy for County purposes—2.6 mills.

The following remarks and data are submitted for the better understanding of the annual financial report for the year ending December 31, 1939.

COUNTY GENERAL FUND

In addition to the expense of operating the Court House and Jail many welfare activities are financed from the County General Fund. These include the Children's Home, County Infirmary, Soldiers Relief and Burial, care of indigent tubercular cases and indigent crippled children, as well as the maintenance of several hundred persons in various State Institutions for the feeble minded and insane.

Blind relief and aid to dependent children are financed partly from the County General Fund and partly from grants from the State and Federal Governments as shown on this report.

Agricultural extension work, and County and State elections are also financed from the General Fund.

During the year 1939, Richland County operated on the extremely low rate of two mills per thousand dollars of tax value.

COUNTY DEBT

No new bonds have been issued during the past four years and the County debt is being steadily reduced. The amount of outstanding bonds and notes was reduced from $170,530.00 on January 1, 1939 to $17,150.00 on January 1, 1940. In addition to this amount the County has outstanding relief bonds amounting to $36,500.00 which are, however, entirely financed by State money.

In order to protect the limited operating funds the County has followed a policy of issuing no new bonds without a vote of the people. If this policy is continued Richland County will be entirely free of debt at the end of the current year.

In 1927 Richland County owed approximately two millions of dollars. Excluding poor relief bonds that are financed by the State the County now owes $17,150.00. This is a per capita debt of 27c in 1940 as compared with a per capita debt of 75c in 1939 and a per capita debt of $30.00 in 1928.

COUNTY ROAD FUNDS

All income for road purposes is now derived from the auto license tax and gas tax and the detail of the expenditures from this fund is easily followed in the report.

New construction of roads and bridges, maintenance and repair of all County highways, weed mowing, snow removal and supervision of the County highway system are paid for out of this fund.

TAX FUNDS

The County acts as a tax assessing, collecting, and distributing agency for the other units of local government; namely, the schools, cities, villages, and townships. Richland County acts in this capacity for sixteen school districts, two cities, seven villages, and eighteen townships. These funds make up the item shown as "Undistributed Tax Funds."

In 1939 the County handled $2,940,359.44 for the various units of local government.

The other items contained in this report are, I believe, self explanatory.

NORMAN L. WOLFE,
Richland County Auditor.

AIRCRAFT, STEEL SHARES LEAD PRICE ADVANCE

Boeing, United and Douglas Feature Market Hike; Commodities Higher.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Aircrafts and steels jumped more than a point today, leading the whole stock market higher.

Included in the more active advancers were Boeing, Douglas, United Aircraft.

Bonds were irregular. Commodities were higher, with wheat up more than one cent a bushel. Foreign markets were uneven.

Market men generally interpreted the resignation of the French cabinet to foreshadow an intensification of the war against Germany.

Wall Street analysts of aviation stocks carefully weighed President Roosevelt's assertion that foreign military orders had trebled the output of American aircraft manufacturers, balancing the earnings from war orders and the possibilities of early peace.

Estimates were that the industrial barometer, freight carloadings, had held steady in the week ended March 16 at about 621,000 cars although it usually increases at this period.

no pastoral assignment, contacted a former convict and requested him to "get some one to take a man for a ride."

The man instead tipped police and the "killer" turned out to be 27-year-old Trooper W. J. Hayes, a native of Toledo, O., who was assigned to the case.

Hayes said he met Mrs. Santilli and Mr. Miller at the minister's home and that she told him she wanted her husband killed — "I don't care how, as long as it looks like an accident."

The woman showed Hayes a $5,000 insurance policy on her husband which carried a double indemnity for accidental death. When the trooper pressed for information about his pay, he said Mrs. Santilli gave him a signed agreement to $2,500 for her husband's death.

CHAPTER XXIV

Star left, too depressed to argue. The agency had not been able to place her although it had been almost two weeks. Nothing seemed to be working out for her. Everything was at a complete standstill until the day she answered the telephone on her desk to hear, "Mrs. Lambert is here and would like to see Mr. Wood."

Star glanced into the office where Milton sat absorbed in some papers.

"Send her in," she answered mechanically, but she sat as if paralyzed until she saw Nina's vivid face at the door. Expecting Nina to ignore her, Star was dumbfounded to hear her say, "Why, Star darling, what are you doing here! Why didn't Milton tell me you were working for him?"

Star had forgotten what a colorful person Nina was. Plumper than ever with a bright red hat perched upon her gray streaked curls, wearing a gay ensemble of blue and gold with gloves to match, and high-heeled red shoes. She kissed Star affectionately as if they had never had that fateful conversation in the girl's bedroom when Nina warned her secretary that marriage to her son would never be successful.

"Now tell me all about it," Nina commanded. "Of course you know Bob scoured the city for you before we went to Europe. He even went to see your mother."

"Yes, Star admitted, "Mother told me about it. But she didn't know where I was. I didn't tell her until you were gone. How is he, Mrs. Lambert? And how are you?"

"Fine. Both of us are fine," Nina said hastily. "But when did you come to work for Milton?"

"Just before you sailed."

"We were terribly upset about you," Nina reproached Star just as Milton came out of his office with outstretched hands.

"Well, Nina," he said. "I began to think you had deserted us."

"I'll never desert you," Nina replied extravagantly. "You ought to know that."

"Over one brightly-clad shoulder, she said, "See you later, Star!" and followed him into his office. The door was closed and Star felt shut out. Fully conscious of the utter unreasonableness of her attitude, Star resented it. After all, she was only Milton's secretary. Nina had known him for years.

Resolutely she turned back to her typewriter trying to put all thought of them out of her mind. But Nina was not easily dismissed. Her manner had been not only kind but affectionate. As if she were glad to see her.

"I probably imagined it," Star told herself. "Nina has never really cared for me. And she didn't seem to want to talk about Bob. She didn't even say whether he was with her. Perhaps he stopped in New York.

No sooner had she reached this conclusion than the door to her office opened and Bob Lambert appeared.

"May I come in?" he asked eagerly.

He looked younger than she had remembered him. With his fresh clear skin and gray eyes so like his mother's. But there was no denying the delight in Bob's voice or the firm clasp of his hand.

"How wonderful to find you again! And you haven't changed, Star. Except to get thinner. You are as beautiful as ever."

"How are you, Bob?"

"Well, not thinner, as you can see," he admitted, smiling.

"Did you have a grand time?"

"I did not," he protested. "Every day we were gone I begged Nina to come back. But you know how she is."

Star nodded.

"There never was any one like her. I suppose she took Europe in her stride as she does everything else."

"And how," he groaned. "The woman is insatiable. She thought if she could keep me busy enough I'd get over you. But it was no use. I'm just as determined to marry you as I was in the beginning."

Star looked at him in surprise. So much had happened to her since they had been engaged. It seemed unbelievable that he should suddenly appear again asking her to marry him.

"Let's not talk about it here," she suggested, flushing.

"Then where? Will you have dinner with me tonight?"

As Star hesitated, he urged. "Nina won't object. She telephoned me that you were here. That's why I came."

"Your mother telephoned you?" she repeated. "When?"

"Just a few minutes ago. From Mr. Wood's office. She's in there, you know."

What would Milton think? She had told him long ago of her engagement to Bob, but her first impulse was to reassure him. In his anxiety Bob had taken her hands and at this moment the door to the inner office opened to admit Nina and Milton. Star's quick glance registered the fact that he was smiling, but his eyes were miserable.

"I'm trying to persuade her to have dinner with me," Bob explained.

"And why not?" Nina cried gayly. "Bring her to the house," she added warmly. "Please come, Star! There is so much to say and so little time to say it in. Bob is leaving for New York tomorrow night."

"I'll be glad to come," Star said slowly. "If you're sure you want me."

Her remark had been addressed to Nina rather than Bob and it was Nina who answered. "Of course we want you, child. Bye now. We have to run."

"I'll call for you dear," Bob offered. "Are you living with your mother?"

Still bewildered at the rapid turn of events, Star gave him her address and a moment later they had gone. She sat at her desk staring blankly at the wall. Her employer had returned to his office but presently his buzzer rang and Star rose to answer it. He was standing at the window looking out at the neighboring roofs and his face was expressionless.

"Sit down," he said. "I want to talk to you. Of course you realize that Bob Lambert is still in love with you." He spoke rapidly as if it were a speech he had been rehearsing. "Nina tells me that he has been very unhappy. Instead of Nina's convincing him that his love was a boyish infatuation, he has convinced her of its sincerity. She is willing for him to marry you now."

Star said nothing. Blue eyes fixed on his face, she tried to reply, but could find no words to express the tumult in her mind.

"It would be an excellent match for you," Milton said stiffly. "Not only from a material point of view. Bob is ambitious and intelligent. He has a fine position waiting for him in New York. But that's not all. He is a good boy. Clean-cut and decent as they come. He will make a good husband."

"I am not in love with him," Star said faintly.

"You could probably learn to love a husband who is devoted to you," he reminded her.

"Do you want me to marry Bob?" Star demanded.

He started to speak. His lips opened but no sound came. Instead he turned back to the window. Star waited a moment, then unable to bear it, she cried, "please answer my question."

"It would probably be the wisest move you could make," he muttered.

Tears rushed into her eyes. Outraged pride quivered in her voice. "All right! If that's the way you feel about it, maybe I will!" she cried and rushed from the room.

How strange it seemed to return to the house where they had been so happy. The months between rolled away leaving everything as it had been before. Everything? Well, no, Star admitted. The part Milton Wood had played in her life had made a vast difference. She felt years older than the immature girl who had come to Nina's seeking a position. Older than that same girl who had crept away early in the morning, hurt and humiliated. But the house itself and its occupants were the same. The housekeeper opened the door, smiling. "Good evening, Miss Bright. It's nice to see you again."

There were flowers in the living-room, chrysanthemums instead of roses. The room with its books and pictures, its nest of tables and cushioned chairs, was restful and gay. And Nina wearing one of her brilliantly colored house coats looked up from her place on the davenport to meet the girl with her son.

"Isn't this fun?" she asked in her own inimitable fashion, waving the amber cigarette holder. "The three of us together again. Just like old times."

Bob said, "Isn't she gorgeous, Nina? It doesn't seem fair for any one girl to have such a corner on beauty."

Star had worn one of the black dresses she bought for the office but Bob's flower—a cluster of gardenias—relieved its severity and enhanced the whiteness of her skin.

"Cocktail?" Nina inquired, pouring them.

BRITISH PLANES LEVEL NAZI BASE IN AIR ASSAULT

Raiders Return to Sylt Early Today After Seven-Hour Attack During Night.

and whether the follow-up flights have dropped any more bombs must wait until "all planes have returned" from this latest mission, ministry sources said.

Reports from Tonder, Denmark, said two planes returned to the scene at 9 a. m. (3 a. m. EST) and dropped six bombs, but more than 100 were dropped in the mass raid of last night and early today.

The bright, thunderous crash of bombs, earth-shaking roars that signified destroyed arsenals, and the leaping red flare of burning hangars and shops gave Britain's reply through the night to Saturday's German raid on Scapa Flow.

This was the picture fitted together from air ministry communiques and the accounts of waters in nearby Denmark.

From 8 p. m. (2 p. m. EST) until after 3 a. m., the smashing attack continued. The bark of anti-aircraft guns, the fretwork of tracer bullets and the blue-white glare of searchlights manned by Sylt's defenders contributed to the nether-world scene.

Only one British plane was lost, the air ministry said.

"Direct hits on hangars housing seaplanes which have raided the British coast were claimed by crews of several aircraft," the ministry reported in a graphic summation of the results.

"Railway lines and barrack blocks were reported hit. One bomber crew saw a line of four or five bombs dropped by aircraft ahead of them burst just inland of a jetty.

"Another crew reported two hangars burning fiercely as they left the island.

"Though the weather was fine and visibility good, little opposition was encountered from enemy fighters. Ground defenses, however, were continuously alive."

Shortly after the raids, War Secretary Oliver Stanley bluntly replied to critics of Britain's war efforts in the United States and other neutral countries by declaring to a luncheon audience that "we intend to fight in our own way and not in their way."

Stanley said that the foreign press had criticized Britain for a lack of enterprise and initiative.

"This is a dangerous lesson for neutrals to teach," he said, adding that "we are now learning that persons who ignore the rights of neutrals" receive their admiration.

Stanley, addressing the national defense society, lashed out at those who call this, "in language culled from the ringside, a phoney war."

This is a phrase, said the war minister, used by people who, after a good dinner, sit down and urge two fighters to tear each other to pieces.

Speaking of "Germany's challenge," Stanley said that people across the ocean are thinking "how are we going to keep out of it, but they're in it."

"No one can remain indifferent to the result of the struggle," he said. "Do they (neutrals) really think that if we lose, life can go on as they know it?"

Berlin Says Planes Struck One House.

BERLIN —(U.P.)— A high command communique said today that several British airplanes attacked the island of Sylt up to 2:40 a. m. today and struck one house.

Otherwise, thanks to the German defense, the planes did no damage, it was said, and most of their bombs fell into the water.

One British plane was shot down, it was said.

The official news agency, reporting that British planes raided Sylt from 8 p. m. yesterday to 2:40 a. m. today, said that the raid was a "propaganda maneuver intended to wipe out the impression of the Scapa Flow raid by German planes."

Danish Dispatch Describes Sylt Raid.

COPENHAGEN — (INS) — British attacks on the German fortified island of Sylt were resumed today only a few hours after last night's intensive aerial bombardment of the reich air and naval air and naval base came to a shattering end.

The attacks were launched anew at 8:45 a. m. Eight bombs were dropped on the island, where the previous attacks, which came in waves and lasted seven hours, were believed to have caused major damage.

The first British planes were seen by residents of the Danish island of Romoe, just north of Sylt.

Suddenly, from a high altitude, they went into roaring powerdives and released their bombs.

Eight explosions were heard as the missiles struck.

In contrast to last night's raid, which was met only with anti-aaircraft fire, this morning German pursuit planes arose to meet the British attackers.

Anti-aircraft batteries also cooperated in attempting to drive off the raiders.

But the new British attacks lasted until 10 a. m., according to reports received in Copenhagen.

(Editor's Note: A Reuters dispatch received in London also stated that raids against Sylt had been renewed this morning.)

At 10 a. m., the British planes disappeared in a northwesternly direction, pursued by German fighting craft. After that no additional planes were seen and no more explosions heard.

Meanwhile, it was ascertained that bombs fell during the night at various points on Danish territory—at Holmsland and Klit on the West Jutland coast, where a few uninhabited houses were gutted, at Fanoe, where bomb splinters were found, and at Darum near Esbjerg.

DALADIER QUITS AS WAR PREMIER

Resigns Office After Cabinet Receives Only Minority Vote of Confidence.

new government. Custom requires that he summon first Jules Jeanneney, aged president of the senate, and then Edouard Herriott, president of the chamber of deputies.

The retiring government was the product of a Sept. 13 amplification for war purposes. Broadly, however, it was the same government which Daladier instituted April 10, 1938.

At the end of a 12-hour session, the chamber followed last Friday's lead of the senate and returned a vote of confidence, but the vote was such as to leave the burden of proof still upon the premier.

Departing from a wartime policy of unanimity, and with less than half of the more than 500 members participating, the chamber voted 239 to 1 to have Daladier "take immediately and in all domains, measures indispensable to bring France's war force to a maximum, and to carry the war to victory in close accord with our allies."

The vote of confidence included this testimonial:

"The chamber expresses to the Finnish nation and army the homage of its admiration for their magnificent courage."

CHAPTER XXIV

Star left, too depressed to argue. The agency had not been able to place her although it had been almost two weeks. Nothing seemed to be working out for her. Everything was at a complete standstill until the day she answered the telephone on her desk to hear, "Mrs. Lambert is here and would like to see Mr. Wood."

Star glanced into the office where Milton sat absorbed in some papers.

"Send her in," she answered mechanically, but she sat as if paralyzed until she saw Nina's vivid face at the door. Expecting Nina to ignore her, Star was dumbfounded to hear her say, "Why, Star darling, what are you doing here! Why didn't Milton tell me you were working for him?"

Star had forgotten what a colorful person Nina was. Plumper than ever with a bright red hat perched upon her gray streaked curls, wearing a gay ensemble of blue and gold with gloves to match, and high-heeled red shoes. She kissed Star affectionately as if they had never had that fateful conversation in the girl's bedroom when Nina warned her secretary that marriage to her son would never be successful

"Now tell me all about it," Nina commanded. "Of course you know Bob scoured the city for you before we went to Europe. He even went to see your mother."

"Yes, Star admitted, "Mother told me about it. But she didn't know where I was. I didn't tell her until you were gone. How is he, Mrs. Lambert? And how are you?"

"Fine. Both of us are fine," Nina said hastily "But when did you come to work for Milton?"

"Just before you sailed"

"We were terribly upset about you," Nina reproached Star just as Milton came out of his office with outstretched hands.

"Well, Nina," he said, "I began to think you had deserted us."

"I'll never desert you," Nina replied extravagantly. "You ought to know that."

Over one brightly-clad shoulder, she said, "See you later, Star!" and followed him into his office. The door was closed and Star felt shut out. Fully conscious of the utter unreasonableness of her attitude, Star resented it. After all, she was only Milton's secretary. Nina had known him for years.

Resolutely she turned back to her typewriter trying to put all thought of them out of her mind. But Nina was not easily dismissed Her manner had been not only kind but affectionate. As if she were glad to see her.

"I probably imagined it," Star told herself. "Nina has never really cared for me. And she didn't seem to want to talk about Bob. She didn't even say whether he was with her. Perhaps he stopped in New York.

No sooner had she reached this conclusion than the door to her office opened and Bob Lambert appeared.

"May I come in?" he asked eagerly.

He looked younger than she had remembered him. With his fresh clear skin and gray eyes so like his mother's. But there was no denying the delight in Bob's voice or the firm clasp of his hand.

"How wonderful to find you again! And you haven't changed, Star. Except to get thinner. You are as beautiful as ever."

"How are you, Bob?"

"Well, not thinner, as you can see," he admitted, smiling.

"Did you have a grand time?"

"I did not," he protested. "Every day we were gone I begged Nina to come back. But you know how she is."

Star nodded.

"There never was any one like her. I suppose she took Europe in her stride as she does everything else."

"And how," he groaned. "The woman is insatiable. She thought if she could keep me busy enough I'd get over you. But it was no use. I'm just as determined to marry you as I was in the beginning."

Star looked at him in surprise. So much had happened to her since they had been engaged. It seemed unbelievable that he should suddenly appear again asking her to marry him.

"Let's not talk about it here," she suggested, flushing.

"Then where? Will you have dinner with me tonight?"

As Star hesitated, he urged. "Nina won't object. She telephoned me that you were here. That's why I came."

"Your mother telephoned you?" she repeated. "When?"

"Just a few minutes ago. From Mr. Wood's office. She's in there, you know."

What would Milton think? She had told him long ago of her engagement to Bob, but her first impulse was to reassure him. In his anxiety Bob had taken her hands and at this moment the door to the inner office opened to admit Nina and Milton. Star's quick glance registered the fact that he was smiling, but his eyes were miserable.

"I'm trying to persuade her to have dinner with me," Bob explained.

"And why not?" Nina cried gayly. "Bring her to the house," she added warmly. "Please come, Star! There is so much to say and so little time to say it in. Bob is leaving for New York tomorrow night."

"I'll be glad to come," Star said slowly. "If you're sure you want me."

Her remark had been addressed to Nina rather than Bob and it was Nina who answered. "Of course we want you, child. Bye now. We have to run."

"I'll call for you dear," Bob offered. "Are you living with your mother?"

Still bewildered at the rapid turn of events, Star gave him her address and a moment later they had gone. She sat at her desk staring blankly at the wall. Her employer had returned to his office but presently his buzzer rang and Star rose to answer it. He was standing at the window looking out at the neighboring roofs and his face was expressionless.

"Sit down," he said. "I want to talk to you. Of course you realize that Bob Lambert is still in love with you." He spoke rapidly as if it were a speech he had been rehearsing. "Nina tells me that he has been very unhappy. Instead of Nina's convincing him that his love was a boyish infatuation, he has convinced her of its sincerity. She is willing for him to marry you now."

Star said nothing. Blue eyes fixed on his face, she tried to reply, but could find no words to express the tumult in her mind.

"It would be an excellent match for you," Milton said stiffly. "Not only from a material point of view, Bob is ambitious and intelligent. He has a fine position waiting for him in New York. But that's not all. He is a good boy. Clean-cut and decent as they come. He will make a good husband."

"I am not in love with him," Star said faintly.

"You could probably learn to love a husband who is devoted to you," he reminded her.

"Do you want me to marry Bob?" Star demanded

He started to speak. His lips opened but no sound came. Instead he turned back to the window. Star waited a moment, then unable to bear it, she cried, "please answer my question."

"It would probably be the wisest move you could make," he muttered.

Tears rushed into her eyes. Outraged pride quivered in her voice.

"All right! If that's the way you feel about it, maybe I will!" she cried and rushed from the room.

How strange it seemed to return to the house where they had been so happy. The months between rolled away leaving everything as it had been before. Everything? Well, no, Star admitted. The part Milton Wood had played in her life had made a vast difference. She felt years older than the immature girl who had come to Nina's seeking a position. Older than that same girl who had crept away early in the morning, hurt and humiliated. But the house itself and its occupants were the same. The housekeeper opened the door, smiling. "Good evening, Miss Bright. It's nice to see you again."

There were flowers in the living-room, chrysanthemums instead of roses. The room with its books and pictures, its nest of tables and cushioned chairs, was restful and gay. And Nina wearing one of her brilliantly colored house coats looked up from her place on the davenport to meet the girl with her son.

"Isn't this fun?" she asked in her own inimitable fashion, waving the amber cigarette holder. "The three of us together again. Just like old times."

Bob said, "Isn't she gorgeous, Nina? It doesn't seem fair for any one girl to have such a corner on beauty."

Star had worn one of the black dresses she bought for the office but Bob's flower — a cluster of gardenias — relieved its severity and enhanced the whiteness of her skin.

"Cocktail?" Nina inquired, pouring them.

BRITISH PLANES LEVEL NAZI BASE IN AIR ASSAULT

Raiders Return to Sylt Early Today After Seven-Hour Attack During Night.

and whether the follow-up flights have dropped any more bombs must wait until "all planes have returned" from this latest mission, ministry sources said.

Reports from Tonder, Denmark, said two planes returned to the scene at 9 a. m. (3 a. m. EST) and dropped six bombs, but more than 100 were dropped in the mass raid of last night and early today.

The bright, thunderous crash of bombs, earth-shaking roars that signified destroyed arsenals, and the leaping red flare of burning hangars and shops gave Britain's reply through the night to Saturday's German raid on Scapa Flow.

This was the picture fitted together from air ministry communiques and the accounts of waters in nearby Denmark.

From 8 p. m. (2 p. m. EST) until after 3 a. m., the smashing attack continued. The bark of anti-aircraft guns, the fretwork of tracer bullets and the blue-white glare of searchlights manned by Sylt's defenders contributed to the nether-world scene.

Only one British plane was lost, the air ministry said.

"Direct hits on hangars housing seaplanes which have raided the British coast were claimed by crews of several aircraft," the ministry reported in a graphic summation of the results.

"Railway lines and barrack blocks were reported hit. One bomber crew saw a line of four or five bombs dropped by aircraft ahead of them burst just inland of a jetty.

"Another crew reported two hangars burning fiercely as they left the island.

"Though the weather was fine and visibility good, little opposition was encountered from enemy fighters. Ground defenses, however, were continuously alive."

Shortly after the raids, War Secretary Oliver Stanley bluntly replied to critics of Britain's war efforts in the United States and other neutral countries by declaring to a luncheon audience that 'we intend to fight in our own way and not in their way."

Stanley said that the foreign press had criticized Britain for a lack of enterprise and initiative.

"This is a dangerous lesson for neutrals to teach," he said, adding that "we are now learning that persons who ignore the rights of neutrals" receive their admiration.

Stanley, addressing the national defense society, lashed out at those who call this, "in language culled from the ringside, a phoney war."

This is a phrase, said the war minister, used by people who, after a good dinner, sit down and urge two fighters to tear each other to pieces.

Speaking of "Germany's challenge," Stanley said that people across the ocean are thinking "how are we going to keep out of it, but they're in it."

"No one can remain indifferent to the result of the struggle," he said. "Do they (neutrals) really think that if we lose, life can go on as they know it?"

Berlin Says Planes Struck One House.

BERLIN —(U.P.)— A high command communique said today that several British airplanes attacked the island of Sylt up to 2:40 a. m. today and struck one house.

Otherwise, thanks to the German defense, the planes did no damage, it was said, and most of their bombs fell into the water.

One British plane was shot down, it was said.

The official news agency, reporting that British planes raided Sylt from 8 p. m. yesterday to 2:40 a. m. today, said that the raid was a "propaganda maneuver intended to wipe out the impression of the Scapa Flow raid by German planes."

Danish Dispatch Describes Sylt Raid.

COPENHAGEN —(UNS)— British attacks on the German fortified island of Sylt were resumed today only a few hours after last night's intensive aerial bombardment of the reich air and naval air and naval base came to a shattering end.

The attacks were launched anew at 8:45 a. m. Eight bombs were dropped on the island, where the previous attacks, which came in waves and lasted seven hours, were believed to have caused major damage.

The first British planes were seen by residents of the Danish island of Romoe, just north of Sylt.

Suddenly, from a high altitude, they went into roaring power-dives and released their bombs.

Eight explosions were heard as the missiles struck.

In contrast to last night's raid, which was met only with anti-aaircraft fire, this morning German pursuit planes arose to meet the British attackers.

Anti-aircraft batteries also cooperated in attempting to drive off the raiders.

But the new British attacks lasted until 10 a. m., according to reports received in Copenhagen.

(Editor's Note: A Reuters dispatch received in London also stated that raids against Sylt had been renewed this morning.)

At 10 a. m., the British planes disappeared in a northwesternly direction, pursued by German fighting craft. After that no additional planes were seen and no more explosions heard.

Meanwhile, it was ascertained that bombs fell during the night at various points on Danish territory—at Holmsland and Klit on the West Jutland coast, where a few uninhabited houses were gutted, at Fanoe, where bomb splinters were found, and at Darum near Esbjerg.

new government. Custom requires that he summon first Jules Jeanneney, aged president of the senate, and then Edouard Herriott, president of the chamber of deputies.

The retiring government was the product of a Sept. 13 amplification for war purposes. Broadly, however, it was the same government which Daladier instituted April 10, 1938.

At the end of a 12-hour session, the chamber followed last Friday's lead of the senate and returned a vote of confidence, but the vote was such as to leave the burden of proof still upon the premier.

Departing from a wartime policy of unanimity, and with less than half of the more than 500 members participating, the chamber voted 239 to 1 to have Daladier "take immediately and in all domains, measures indispensable to bring France's war force to a maximum, and to carry the war to victory in close accord with our allies."

The vote of confidence included this testimonial:

"The chamber expresses to the Finnish nation and army the homage of its admiration for their magnificent courage."

Intolerance In America

A RECENT PAMPHLET, "Plymouth Rock and Ellis Island," by Louis Adamic warns Americans of the danger of letting prejudice develop here until they "turn the American dream into a nightmare."

He has received thousands of letters and had many talks with many different people in connection with a book he is writing on the effect of the last hundred years of immigration on America. Nearly all have disclosed a growing racial feeling which disturbs him.

"Millions of us are involved in a complexity of group bickerings and prejudices, name-calling and ignorant arguments and attitudes, which are chewing up and burning up our characters and personalities, our initiative and will," writes Mr. Adamic.

This sort of thing does not protect democracy and Americanism. It surrenders to those foreign "isms" we dread so much and introduces them in our midst. The drive against our civil liberties and cherished ideals is given an entering wedge by our own neglect and abuse of them.

Credit Rating Matter of Record

PROBABLY only a small percentage of people—even among those who buy merchandise or services on credit—have a clear idea of how it comes about that credit is readily extended to some persons and denied to others.

Explanation of credit-rating methods, as now being presented before various Mansfield club groups through the medium of a sound slide film, under direction of V. H. Lodde, secretary-manager of the Mansfield Retail Merchants association, serves to convey interesting information on this subject and to emphasize the importance of prompt payment of credit obligations.

Under a system of nation-wide affiliation of credit bureaus, with facilities for interchange of information, it is now possible for a newcomer in the city, with a satisfactory credit record in his previous place of residence, to quickly establish credit based on past prompt payment of charge accounts. But it is difficult, if not impossible, for anyone with a "poor pay" record to obtain credit, for the reason that complete information regarding unpaid bills is entered on a card in the files of the credit bureau of his home city, and that this record is available to merchants and others associated with credit bureaus in all parts of the country.

Granting of credit, of course, is based on assumption of willingness and ability to pay in accordance with the terms prescribed, whether in the purchase of merchandise, securing of professional or other service, property rental, or whatever the credit accommodation may be.

Credit has become such an important element in business that it has been necessary to develop a system under which much of the earlier risk of losses from "bad accounts" would be eliminated and it is work along this line that is being done by the Mansfield credit rating bureau and by the national organization of which it is a part.

Danger In State Barriers

EFFORT of some states to impose a tax on gasoline in the tanks of busses crossing the state line has failed. The United States Supreme Court has ruled that such a tax is unconstitutional interference with interstate commerce.

No less important is the attitude of the dissenting minority of judges. Even while willing to tolerate the particular abuse involved in this case, they deplored the growing tendency to erect interstate barriers.

There are some provocations to self-defense, no doubt. But eminent jurists and business men are mostly agreed that these interstate taxes, however fair they may seem in any particular instances, on the whole do more harm than good.

American prosperity for the country as a whole depends on free trade among the states, to a degree that can hardly be overemphasized. This long-existing economic freedom between the various states and sections has probably had as much to do with our national success in the past as our political freedom.

Penalty of Absent-Mindedness

THE MOTHER who tells a careless child he'd forget his head if it wasn't fastened on really speaks for many people, adults as well as boys and girls. That conclusion is reached after reading a list of the articles recently sold at auction by the "lost property" department of a city transportation company.

Among the unclaimed items were a wash boiler, a dressmaker's dummy, a baby's scooter, two radios, a phonograph, a violin, five guitars, five clarinets, two banjos, a tom-tom and a fifty-three-piece set of silverware. Granting that absent-minded and hurried—perhaps worried—persons could forget such possessions when they left the street car, one is still amazed at their failure to inquire or advertise for them later. It's just one of those unexplainable things.

New Field For Scalpers

THE RAILROADS have a new problem to contend with. It is the ticket scalper who does with railroad reservations what others have long done with tickets for popular shows, boxing matches, and so on.

It is said that porters, bell captains and others on railroads operating between southern winter resorts and northern cities buy up train reservations and then sell them at a premium to hurried tourists.

The railroads may be expected to take care of this. Meanwhile, it is well to consider the responsibility of the victims of such schemes. Refusal to be victimized would save a passenger's money. It would be a good plan, too, for people to curb their willingness to pay "any price" for what they consider a little special service, particularly when that service would not have been necessary if they had planned their travel more wisely.

There are, of course, emergencies which call people suddenly to distant places. There wouldn't be any scalpers to take advantage of their situation if there weren't so many other people who patronize them needlessly.

It is now revealed it was when he was eight years old that McNutt determined to become president—that being about the age at which all boys were told they had a chance.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Most Broadway reporters have these books on their desks—W. Somerset Maugham's "The Summing Up;" Katharine Cornell's "I Want to Be an Actress;" Noel Coward's "Present Indicative;" Edna Ferber's "A Peculiar Treasure;" Sir Cedric Hardwicke's "Let's Pretend;" Joseph Verner Reed's "The Curtain Falls," Oscar Levant's "A Smattering of Ignorance;" Angna Enter's "First Person Plural;" Helen Hayes Brown's "The Story of Helen Hayes;" William A. Brady's "Showman."

Their value to reporters is the fund of factual information that humanizes the great names of the theater and makes of them substantial, everyday people. They give an intimate, revealing background of, well, say Noel Coward, whose first glimpse of Broadway left such an impression on him that, years after, he wrote, "Broadway was more sharply beautiful than I could ever have imagined—a slightly tawdry beauty, detached, impersonal, and a little scarifying." He was broke in those days, of course, and borrowing money from all his friends.

YOU turn a page and come upon St. John Ervine, the guest critic from London, who hurries to his typewriter to record this prose Rembrandt of Katharine Cornell: "Her fine intelligent face, as sensitive as a seismographic instrument which records the most intimate and remote tremblings of the earth, has a dark, ivory-colored beauty that is almost Amerindian in its quality. Her dusky eyes have a stillness in them that is found in deep, dark water, but is not the stillness of stagnation; it is the stillness of life so quick that the whole of a thought or a feeling can be expressed with the flicker of an eyelid."

You turn another page and find George Gershwin and Oscar Levant in a drawing room, speeding through the night. They are on their way to the coast to compose the score for a musical film. "How is it," demands Levant from the upper berth, "that you get the lower while I'm up here?"

"That's the difference between talent and genius," explains Gershwin.

YOU turn another page and find Joseph Verner Reed, at the Ritz in London, staring into the eyes of Jane Cowl. "They were," he says, "as black as liquid tar." Reed isn't so well known throughout the country perhaps, but his confessions as a producer are among the most human and most revealing documents on the theater ever written. He was the man who found a tall, gawky girl named Katharine Hepburn and gave her her first chance in the theater, to the deep disgust of the rest of the cast.

I like these books because they are good working tools for a man whose shop is on Broadway. They give you the background and the picture, and they give you the private opinions of the authors about their contemporaries, unflattering though many of them are. They save a lot of steps, and a lot of research. And besides, they are darned good reading.

Peace Talk on Hitler's Terms

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

IN THE light of Finland's surrender to Russia, State Undersecretary Sumner Welles' trip to Europe may turn out to have been 100 per cent wasted.

As the state department (confidentially, not officially) sees it, the Russo-Finnish development has so changed the situation that Welles' chats with Il Duce Mussolini, Fuehrer Hitler and Premiers Chamberlain and Daladier no longer mean much.

The Finns' capitulation generally is recognized as having strengthened Adolf's position decidedly. It wasn't much of a victory for Russia, which, though it gained more than it asked for originally, has lost immensely in prestige by the strength that the resistance the little republic put up against the Soviets' huge numerical superiority. But the outcome helped Hitler: he probably is glad enough to see Muscovites materially deflated.

It's foreseen that the net result will be an increased disposition on the Fuehrer's part to talk peace—ON HIS TERMS.

Naturally. He'll feel that the Allies will be scared; consequently better inclined toward accepting the best conditions he'll agree to. But the Allies are made of sterner stuff that that. Britain is, anyway. The more formidable Adolf gets, the more determined the British are to go on fighting him.

In fact, London's press comment hints that Welles' visit, just at the present juncture, has annoyed John Bull considerably. When he left the United States, Sumner was spoken of in England as a welcome enough caller. But by the time he got there, Adolf already had scored his indirect triumph in Finland. Thus the Fuehrer is enabled to propose peace (ON HIS TERMS) more fluently than ever. And Britain (which won't accept HIS TERMS) is placed in the position of insisting on going on fighting.

Welles a "Meddler."

Undersecretary Welles, accordingly, is described by the British press as a "meddler."

Paris was politer to him than London was, but perhaps that's because the French are naturally more courteous than the English. Berlin was very polite, indeed. Things were "breaking" Berlin's way, and it could afford to be affable.

It would have been interesting if Sumner had dropped in on Moscow, but he didn't do it.

But Italy?

Mussolini wants peace, like every civilized ruler—if HE'S civilized.

He was just as nice as he could be to Sumner.

Italy, it appeared, from the Rome confabulations, was more than willing to join Uncle Sam on an international peace program.

That, however, was before Adolf (via Joe Stalin) had scored in Finland. Now it may be different. Adolf has registered a German success in Scandinavia and Benito, like everybody, undoubtedly likes to be on the winning side—especially considering that Italy was pro-German anyway. To be sure, it wasn't pro-Russian, but the contrary.

Anyway it's a mere guess what Sumner Welles' last chats were with Mussolini.

The whole thing's gummed up impossibly.

It's a good deal worse than diplomacy was in the last war.

Badly Jolted.

American military strategists argue that the state department oughtn't to have been so badly jolted by the Moscow-Helsinki dicker.

They say that Norway and Sweden were quite right in refusing to let democratic countries' forces cross their territory on their way to help the Finns. They say that the democracies would have been all right, if they had offered SUFFICIENT forces to do any good.

But, "Phooey!" they say, so far as the few regiments they suggested.

What jolted our diplomacy was that the thing occurred so suddenly.

Regardless of Norway and Sweden (via the Atlantic and the Baltic) navy experts point out that the English and French could have broken into northern Finland and Russia by way of their respective ice-free Arctic ports. It would have been inconvenient, but no more inconvenient than for the Russians—whose Arctic coast is undefended.

In short, the Allies didn't try very hard.

Approves Census Questions.

Editor News-Journal:

Why all this talk about the census-taking being another New Deal gesture, etc.? As far back as I can remember, the census was taken every 10 years and just because it happens to come in 1940, is no reason why it should be called a "New Deal" gesture—and WHY are these people squawking so hard about it?

Is there something they are doing they are ashamed to tell their government? Could it be the husband is working, maybe the wife, too, and could it be possible they might be accepting a pension from the government, too? It might be that they haven't a chick or child to spend their hard earned cash on. I would be ashamed too, to see the census taker come to see me. For him to see what "little potatoes" I'd been all this time and was still squawking.

I think it's a crime for people living in this wonderful United States where we have religious freedom and everything a person's heart could desire, and then complain all the time. I think these people should be sent over to the Old Country and live under the German flag (for instance) or any of them for that matter, and my bet is that they would be more than glad to come back and say, the old United States is a wonderful place and all the trouble is that people have too much and therefore appreciate nothing."

I think the government has the right to know your income; whether you have a bathroom and a lot of other things that go to make life worth living. That's the only way they have of knowing the living conditions in this country.

On Your Guard Against Mumps!

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE great infectious disease of spring is mumps. Although it is with us always, it is particularly likely to break out in the spring months.

It has several peculiarities. It is one of the most contagious diseases that we have. Its immunity does not last forever or, in plain words, you may have several attacks during your life. The person who has mumps is contagious for longer than a person with any other contagious disease. And last, but not least, it is generally regarded as a joke when, as a matter of fact, it should be taken seriously.

It is an inflammation of glands. Of course, the glands most prominently affected are the salivary glands—the parotid glands located around the upper part of the jaw near the ear. But the reproductive glands are also affected. This is what makes it serious because the consequences may last for life.

How It Is Spread.

Since the infection is localized in the parotid glands, it is natural that infection to others occurs from cough droplets and, in a household of children, from the indiscriminate common use of the same handkerchief or towel. It is almost impossible, once mumps is started in a household, to keep others from being infected.

In the army camp where I was stationed during our last war, we had wards for all the infectious diseases. Sometimes the measles wards and scarlet fever wards and chickenpox wards would be entirely empty. But we always had mumps. Whenever a new draft of troops came along, we got a couple of mumps wards ready because we knew they would soon be filled.

The first symptom is pain around the ear, so that the child is thought to have an earache. But if lemon or orange juice taken in the mouth causes pain it is likely to be mumps.

Swelling Increases.

The swelling increases from the third to the sixth day, at which time the face takes on the comic appearance which has made the disease to be considered as a joke.

The important thing to stress in treatment is the prevention of the involvement of the reproductive glands; for this, rest in bed is imperative, several days in young children or even a week in children at the age of adolescence, from 14 to 20.

Aside from rest in bed, the less treatment given the better. An ice pack or cold compress, or hot compress, whichever is the more comfortable, may alleviate the discomfort of the swelling of the salivary glands. In putting a cold compress on, remember that the place you want to hit is up around the ears, so run the cloth from below the jaw, over the top of the head, not around the back of the neck. Do the same with the ice pack or hot water bag.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

R. H. W.: "What is the effect of the excessive use of tobacco on the health of a 50-year-old man? I have been chewing tobacco for 35 years and am seldom without it during my waking hours."

Answer—I do not believe that it has ever been proved that tobacco causes any organic disease in the body, but undoubtedly it has a bad functional effect on the secretions of the stomach and of the movement of the intestine and on the digestive system generally. It may also have a bad effect on the eyes. If any high blood pressure is present, it raises that slightly and will bring on attacks of pain in the heart. From your description your use of it is undoubtedly excessive. As a further piece of advice, it is a habit that, according to my experience, is very easy to stop.

Daily Bible Thought

Blessed are they that dwell in thy house: they will be still praising thee. Selah. — Psalm 84:4.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Backstage, all the stew over whether the Allies are getting planes ahead of the U. S. army and Navy boils down to a personal vendetta between the secretary of war and the secretary of the treasury, plus some needling by younger army air corps officers.

It happens that Treasury Boss Henry Morgenthau asked for and got the job of coordinating airplane purchases, and his bouncing little cabinet colleague, Harry Woodring, doesn't like it. If you note the congressmen who are stirring up the investigation on Capitol Hill, they are chiefly friends of Secretary Woodring.

Real fact is that although Morgenthau has made some minor mistakes, his chief error has been in offending people. Army and navy plane purchases have not suffered. Both Secretary of the Navy Edison and Assistant War Secretary Johnson, who has charge of purchases, testify to this.

U. S. planes have been delivered on time, and no secret planes are getting to the Allies.

Morgenthau's chief boner was in asking the quartermaster general of the army, Major General Henry Gibbins, and the paymaster general of the navy, Rear Admiral Ray Spear, to sit on his Allied purchasing coordinating committee. Neither one knows anything about airplanes. Younger officers in the air corps resent this, and have been squawking, though the able chief of air corps, General Arnold, hasn't.

Worried Morgenthau.

MORGENTHAU got into the airplane picture because this is the one big commodity the Allies are purchasing and he told the president he didn't want their financing operations to upset the U. S. money market. To pay for the planes, the Allies are dumping American securities, plus U. S. government bonds and Morgenthau didn't want them to depress his own government offerings. (He has to issue new ones constantly.)

Siding with Morgenthau are several big shot army-navy men, including Johnson and Edison, who say that the more planes the Allies buy here, the more it helps the U. S. army and navy to develop better planes.

For instance, the Glenn Martin company is building a brand new bomber for the French. But as a partial result of experimenting for the French, Martin also has developed a new bomber for the U. S. which will almost fly circles around the French planes.

Also Lockheed is selling several hundred tip-top planes to the British and French. This has helped it develop a new pursuit plane, which will make about 400 miles per hour. It is the first twin-motored pursuit plane, has a liquid-cooled engine and is expected to astound the world's fighting forces.

Experts say that airplane types change so rapidly that a new plane is out of date in almost six months. Therefore, British and French purchases are enabling the United States to develop both types and factories, giving the army and navy the cream of the crop.

Old Spanish Custom.

WHEN Cordell Hull's career boys persuaded him and Roosevelt to recognize Franco's Spanish government last year, their chief argument was the protection of the International Telephone and Telegraph Company which had a monopoly on the Spanish telephone.

The pro-Fascist clique among the career boys said that they had a pledge from General Franco that the I. T. and T. would be turned back to its American owners if the Spanish Fascists were recognized.

That was last winter. Twelve months have passed, but still the I. T. and T. has not been able to take back its property in Spain. Nazi technicians are helping to operate it for Franco. Sosthenes Bohn, head of the company, was kept waiting months on the border, and even after he got into Spain he was given nothing.

The state department has made representation after representation to Franco reminding him of his pledge. The Spanish dictator does nothing. At present Mr. Hull's assistants are preparing a new and vigorous note, but what they can do about it remains to be seen.

Now Franco has the American telephone system, plus U. S. recognition, plus even an Export-Import Bank loan of $13,000,000.

Irish In Him.

REPRS. John McCormack of Mass., and U. S. Guyer of Kan., were admiring the portrait of Vice President Jack Garner which hangs in the foyer of the house reading room. Shaggy-haired Guyer is a Republican and an ardent prohibitionist, but there was no trace of prejudice in his appraisal of the picture.

"It is very striking, very striking," he exclaimed. "I've never seen a likeness of the vice president in which he appeared so radiantly happy."

"That's the Irish beaming out of him," shot back McCormack, a strong third-term advocate, with a roguish grin.

Note—There was more truth than blarney in the remark. Garner's mother, Sarah Guest Garner, was Irish.

A Kingfisher

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

TWO DAYS AGO I was confident I heard the rattling call of a kingfisher down by a pool above the rapids of our clear-flowing stream. I knew if this brook were his fishing grounds, I should find him there again.

This morning the graveled road was smeary. Rolling pebbles clung to my feet. I found it heavy going and turned off into the drab, withered grass of the level meadow. I followed through deep slippery sand and brush along the creek, and stopped within sight of a dead tree that hung ten feet or more above a pool. The gnarled old limbs were bare, damp and uninviting.

I stood there for half an hour in thorny brush that prodded me and tore at my sleeves until I thought my quest was fruitless. Then suddenly I heard that peculiar empty rattle above a five-foot perpendicular bank. "That high bank," I thought, "may hold an interesting secret too."

Presently I saw him perch on a broken branch twelve feet above the water. His long beak and the dark scraggly crest made his head look unusually large, compared to the rest of him. His white color and the gray on the lower breast, told me that it was a male.

Soberly and intensely he concentrated his attention upon the stream below. Two different times he poised to dive, but changed his mind. Then, without the slightest warning, he slipped from his perch and splashed into the pool. Almost as quickly as one can tell it he was on the snag again with a writhing fish five inches long held in his beak. He held it by the lateral end and pounded its head upon the branch. The fish wriggled very little after that.

Then I saw an acrobatic stunt that would do credit to a juggler. He tossed the fish into the air and caught it in his beak, head down. I saw the fish slip down quite easily, with only slight contortions of his neck.

I doubt not that beneath the bank where I first saw him he has a burrow four or five feet deep which has taken weeks of labor. In a widened space of such a burrow I have often found five or six white eggs upon a pile of fish bone pellets.

Describes British Raid on German North Sea Air Base

DANE REPORTS DESTRUCTION OF ARMS DUMP

Says English Planes Wrecked Nazi Fortification With Eight Bombs.

(Editor's Note: Niels Schmidt, Danish inn-keeper on the Island of Romoe, north of Sylt, gave the first eye-witness account of the British air raid against the fortified German North sea naval and air base. He reported that a vast German ammunition dump was blown up. Following is the story that Schmidt telephoned to Copenhagen.)

By NIELS SCHMIDT

(As Told to International News Service)

ROMOE ISLAND, Denmark—After seven hours of bombardment by British bombing planes, the sky above the Island of Sylt to the south blazed with light from bomb-set fires.

At 8:15 o'clock last night, two British planes dived out of low-lying clouds and released eight bombs, four each.

Instantly, columns of fire rose on Sylt Island. Then we heard the Sylt air raid sirens wailing their alarm and the searchlights were turned on sweeping the sky in search of the British.

The first pair of attackers vanished into the clouds, but five minutes later another dove down on the German air base, dropping two bombs while anti-aircraft guns all over the island went crazy.

Explosions of British bombs were heard around the Hindenburg dam (connecting Sylt and the mainland).

Flames Follow Explosion.

At 8:30 p. m., a single bomb exploded and then all hell broke loose. An enormous explosion was heard followed by flashes of brilliant flame lighting the sky far into the Danish mainland.

Blast after blast followed each other in rapid succession with the debris of what must have been a huge German ammunition storehouse flying sky-high in the glare of the explosions.

"Immediately, every available anti-aircraft gun began firing away for dear life, shooting tracer bullets and incendiary shells which literally created a wall of fire around Sylt.

"At that stage of the attack, an obviously crippled British plane was seen making its way out to sea.

"The roar of bomb explosions was continuous and with the drone of diving planes filled the night with terrifying sound.

In addition to the $27,900 in listed assets, the estate includes Michigan and Florida property of unestimated value.

TWO SENTENCED IN BURGLARIES

Second Offender Given Term in Pen, Companion Gets 1 to 15 Years in O. S. R.

Two men indicted last week by the county grand jury were given penitentiary and reformatory terms by Judge C. H. Huston in common pleas court today while three others were placed on probation.

Sentence was imposed following their pleas of guilty last Saturday to being implicated in a burglary ring responsible for several house breakings and the looting of several business concerns.

Southward served a term in the Ohio State reformatory several years ago for a similar offense.

His companion, George L. Offenberger, 23, indicted on the same charge was sentenced to one to 15 years in the reformatory.

Three others, Clifford Webb, Norman McNeely and Clarence Norris, indicted for the theft of scrap metal and parts from several Mansfield business concerns which they admitted selling in Loudonville, each won probation for three years.

SPEAKS ON 'THE AUTHORITY OF JESUS' IN HOLY WEEK SERVICE

Speaking on "The Authority of Jesus," Rev. A. J. McCreary, pastor of the Mt. Calvary Baptist church, delivered the sermon at the third noonday Holy Week service today at the First Lutheran church, attended by about 300 persons.

Rev. McCreary's text was chosen from Matthew, verses 21 to 23, "By what authority doest Thou these things and who gave Thee that authority?" In which Jesus's authority to teach in the temple was challenged.

"The temple was the unlikeliest place for such a question in view of the fact that it was His father's house," Rev. McCreary said.

"All of the conflict that we have in the world today has its genesis in the denial of the authority of Jesus. The church itself is guilty at times of this unpardonable sin. It sometimes substitutes the opinions of men and the traditions of the elders for the word of God

"We have allowed our prejudices and passions to hold sway while calling him Lord, Lord," he said. "This world will never know permanent peace until in all things Christ has supremacy for if he is not Lord of all he is not Lord at all," Rev. McCreary said in conclusion.

Rev. Peter Young, pastor of the First Congregational church, acted as devotional leader for the service. Tomorrow noon Rev. Charles F. Sheriff, pastor of St. Matthew's Lutheran church, will deliver the sermon, and Rev. C. L. Kern, pastor of the South Main Street Evangelical church, will be the devotional leader.

Good Friday two noon-day services will be held, one in the Lutheran church and the other in the First Presbyterian church. As in past years most of the retail stores will close during the noon hour to permit employes to attend one of the services, Rev. Henry H. Ford, president of the Mansfield Ministerial association, said today.

GOVERNOR CUTS LIFE SENTENCES

Bricker Commutes Terms of Three Held on Murder Charges in Ohio Pen.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Gov. John W. Bricker commuted sentences of three Ohio penitentiary convicts today, making them eligible for parole. All were serving life terms.

The tentence of Edward Dean, Springfield, convicted of first degree murder, was reduced to second degree for the slaying of Mark Davis, railway trainman, during the 1906 Clark county race riot in which several were slain.

The pardon and parole board informed the governor that "race prejudice was exceedingly high at the time of Dean's conviction, and it was doubtful if he could have received an absolutely impartial trial."

The board called attention to a death-bed statement of Policeman Albert Yates, principal witness against Dean, in which the officer exonerated Dean of the killing. Dean is now at the London prison farm.

Second degree murder charges against Clifford Frye and C. F. Cater of Guernsey county were lowered to manslaughter, carrying terms of one to 10 years.

They were sentenced in November, 1933, for the claying of Carl Robins, a farmer. Testimony showed that Frye and Cater were caught stealing corn from a crib on Robins' farm, and that the farmer was knocked to the ground during a fight.

Robins, a few days later, was taken to a hospital because of a mental ailment, and died nine days after the fight of brain concussion. The jury decided that the injury had been suffered in the fight with the two men, and returned the second degree verdict.

PUSH AHEAD ON PROBE OF SALE OF WAR PLANES

Congressmen Ignore President's Statement No Military Secrets Go to Allies.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Despite a blunt presidential statement that no military secrets were being released to the allies, a congressional committee undertook today to determine whether national defense interests were being jeopardized by sale of the latest American warplanes to France and Britain.

"Bunk" was the word President Roosevelt used to dismiss suggestions that the sale of secret devices had been countenanced. He said that Franco-British plane orders actually had contributed to the country's defense by increasing aircraft production.

Members of the house military committee indicated, nevertheless, that their investigation would include an examination of the chief executive's exact attitude on the whole question of allied plane and munitions purchases here. Secretary Woodring was called first to explain the war department's policy.

The inquiry opened amid some dissension, because Chairman May (D-Ky.) assumed control after a subcommittee, headed by Rep. Harter (D-Ohio), had arranged to question Woodring, Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson, Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, and Maj. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the army air corps.

President Roosevelt took an indirect hand in the plane purchase controversy when he upheld the legitimacy of foreign buying at his press conference late yesterday. The expansion it made necessary, he said, was the most significant contribution to this country's national defense in the last year. The president said the question of divulging military secrets was not involved because designs of the planes were not secret.

Secret aircraft devices, which Mr. Roosevelt said he believed no other country possessed, will be kept secret as long as possible.

With MARIANNE

ARE you all set for Easter Sunday, with your own gay outfit for the customary parade and a supply of brightly colored eggs for the kiddies' early morning basket hunt? Easter is a joyous day for children, you know, with happy church services—either preceded or followed by an egg hunting contest, which usually has such a wonderful prize as a huge, brilliantly decorated egg, rattling mysteriously with edible contents. . . . And many of us grown-ups, who can remember the joys and fun of all this, like to carry on the idea by giving a few small presents.

Gay and sparkling bottles of perfume, handkerchiefs, gloves and sachets seem to be quite appropriate gifts for just such an occasion. . . . The very newest and most festive perfume (in both fragrance and bottle) on the market now is "Confetti," which was recently introduced by a leading French and American house of toiletries. . . . This frivolous and subtle perfume comes in a bottle topped by a crystal bow and decorated with a fluted glass ruffle. . . . The box catches the gala carnival mood too, with bright bows and confetti sprinkled over it. . . . Better get some for yourself when you give a bottle to your friend, because it will do much toward helping you catch the mood of spring. . . . Oh yes, you can get this new perfume in a handy purse flacon too.

The new handkerchiefs are a jump or two ahead of the early spring blossoms and buds, because they're already blooming with flowers. . . . On white backgrounds with both plain and colored borders, these early season posies are printed in fresh flower garden colors—some on pure Irish linen and others on sheerest Normany cloth. . . . Gloves continue to be every color of the rainbow, and a pair in just the right hue would make a nice Easter present, indeed. . . . Some (in fabric or suede) are fashioned in the popular pull-on style, while others (in wrist and elbow lengths) are trimmed with rows of shirring for the more dressy ensembles. . . . Lavender sachets always lend a pleasant aroma to the handkerchief box or dressing table drawer, so they too would make appreciated gifts for the coming Sunday.

DOES the approach of spring give you the feeling that your face needs to cast off its winter make-up scheme and don a different one for the new season? If so, I can't think of a better line of cosmetics to recommend than those grand hypo-allerengic ones which have been approved by the American Medical association and tested for their purity. . . . Prescribed by doctors for women who have sensitive skins and (here's welcome news) sufferers from asthma, hay fever and rose fever, these cosmetics, it is claimed, can be used with perfect safety because they are so pure. . . . The complete line of powders, creams, lipstick, rouge, lotions and other make-up essentials can be purchased downtown in blended color ensembles for blonds, brunettes and redheads.

While we're speaking of spring, you mustn't forget to have a touch of it in your kitchen. . . . You can too, with a set of the new apron and matching gloves. . . . Does that sound strange, having gloves to match your household apron? Well, these are a special kind, heavy quilted ones for picking up hot things. . . . Of gay flowered chintz, the pick-up gloves match the apron, which are equipped with special large pockets to hold the gloves when you aren't using them. . . . And say, this might be a welcome Easter gift for the new bride too.

LET THERE BE LIGHT

If your kitchen doesn't get much light, paint it a light color. You will be delighted how much more cheerful and bright it becomes. Use dainty curtains, pushed back from the windows, to let in as much sunlight as possible. You can have gay colored accessories and utensils to accent the delicate tint.

When cane chair seats begin to sag, shrink them back into place like this: Turn the chairs upside down and wash the cane with warm water and mild soap suds; rinse well, then saturate with clear warm water and dry. Apply this treatment as soon as the cane shows any signs of sagging.

Rolling Stone, He Wants To Move

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX.

"I have a marriage problem which is affecting the family welfare. My husband has a hobby to move every eight months to a year.

"He can't seem to stay more than a year in any one place We have four small children, and it's hard work to pack and unpack all by myself, and he won't give me a hand This has been going on now for twelve years, and I'm fed up with it He wants to move again and I'm unwilling

"I have told him I'm not going to move because the children and I like the apartment where we are His only answer is 'If you don't move, I will pack my things and go'

"Now, Miss Fairfax, I've taken a liking to this apartment because we have been here longer than ywhere else, and it seems more e home To make things more mfortable, I have suggested putng a stove in the living-room to ake it warmer for the children t no, he wants a steam-heated and I know we couldn't afford Besides we'd only be there a few months and move again

"He has bills to be paid and do you think he will face them? Indeed no I have to do all the dirty work turning off bill collectors, etc But to see him going down the street, anyone would think he was in the millions Well-dressed and the family doesn't come into the picture at all Shall I move again or stay where I am reasonably happy?

"I don't see why where we live should make any difference to him as he comes home late at night has his supper and goes to bed And I who am here all day long haven't a word to say against our home and its accommodations At times I feel I should let him go and 'keep on rolling along'

TROUBLED"

The question is whether this lady who finds herself married to the proverbial rolling stone is depending on him for the maintenance of herself and her four children

If she has an income or is able to earn sufficient to remain in the apartment which seems more like home after all their comings and goings there is no reason why she shouldn't stay She need have no fear about his returning her husband will come back whether he likes the apartment or not That type of man always does

It's not the apartment that he objects to or any home past or future He is driven by his own restlessness and lack of adjustment to life Perhaps a psychiatrist could cure him, or he might be able to cure himself if he could reason himself out of this fruitless moving.

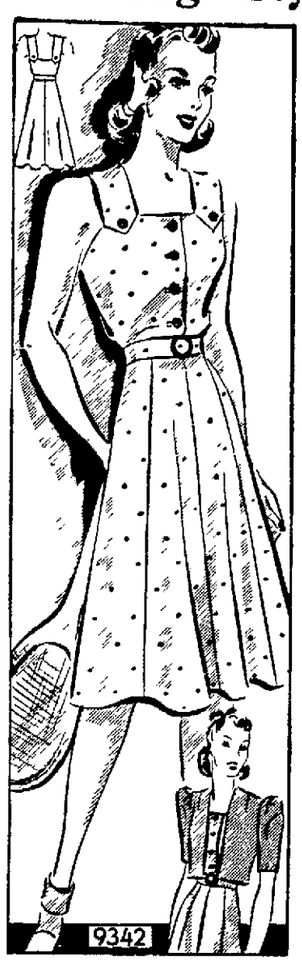

It's obvious that unless he can take root somewhere he will never be able to pay the bills with which he is constantly faced People who are never contented anywhere are trying only to get away from themselves, though they never admit it Innate restlessness abounds in the higher as well as the lower brackets.

In the case of my correspondent with the four children and all the packing to do if she has any means of remaining in that apartment I hope she will continue to do so.

Marriage Meddlers

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Can you do this again tomorrow, Mary," I asked tensely 'exactly the way you did it today, without altering the inflection of a single syllable?"

"Oh!" Mary exclaimed ecstatically "Was I all right? I must have been if you ask me that '

"You were better than all right," I said emphatically "You were as nearly perfect as it was possible to be But I want to put you on record Can you, will you do it again tomorrow? If you can, I'll wager anything I have that the role will be yours permanently Your father-in-law's artistic conscience would never permit him to take it away from you if you duplicate your performance of today '

"I'll duplicate it or die in the attempt," she promised emphatically "Do you want me to go over it again now so as to make certain I won't forget?"

"No!" I said explosively "Not for anything! What I want you to do now is to put all thought of this role out of your head until tomorrow"

"That's a tall order," Mary smiled, "seeing that for months it's occupied every minute of my waking thoughts that wasn't occupied with worrying over Noel. But I can see your point, and I'll do the best I can"

"I wish I could send you and Noel out for a drive or for a trip to the movies," I said 'but unfortunately, we have to keep you incommunicado"

"I'll make Noel play chess with me tonight," Mary said We can always work up a lather or get into a good exciting scrap over that, and we haven't had a game in a coon's age We'll play until we're sleepy and then, tomorrow morning, I'll sleep until you call me How's that for a plan?"

'It's a most excellent plan," I told her "Now give me a kiss for good luck and then I'll call Katie to come up and get the trays"

"She's probably wild from curiosity by now," Mary said with a giggle that held a note of something very like hysteria and her embrace of me was convulsive.

"Promise me something!" I said, holding her off at arms' length

"Of course," she assented promptly 'What is it?'

'Before you start your chess game, go out to the couch on that upstairs balcony and take a nap until dinner time I'll see that nobody disturbs you"

"I can't think of anything I'd like better to do," she said gratefully

'Then you'd better get ready for it at once" I said 'Tell Noel I prescribed it And suppose you go now through this upper corridor to the main part of the house I'll go down the kitchen stairs and through the kitchen and dining room In that way we won't be seen together, and Olina will have no chance to connect our absences from the family circle '

"Okay!" Mary rejoined and departed I waited until I was sure she was not rushing back to avoid meeting Olina, and then, going to the top of the kitchen stairs I lifted my voice and called to Katie

"The Authority on Authorities"

YOU HATE TO DO IT

Hands that lack the slightest element of strength of any kind do not come to any of us often, thank Heaven When we have such a holding we certainly hate to hear our partner take action that obliges us to bid such as an informative or take-out double, a forcing bid of some sort or perhaps what usually is figured as a forcing pass after a previous strong bid If the intervening opponent will only bid something and relieve us of our obligation, we are eternally grateful to him

(Dealer South East-West vulnerable)

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	1 NT	2 ♥	Pass
2-NT

When this deal was over West berated East for not doubling or else bidding one of his four-card suits "I made a forcing pass" he exclaimed "My vulnerable bid of 1-No Trump should have shown you they could not make 2-No Trumps"

As it was the contract was set only one trick and would not have been set at all if West had been about one queen weaker And what a time East would have had trying to make 3-Clubs or 3-Spades Even beating the contract at all was delicate business, because West could not get his partner into the lead

With no good lead West decided first to kill the heart suit so led the J of it to the Q A diamond was led to the 9 and 10 then West led the heart 10 to the K and took the heart A on the return Next came the diamond 8 to the J club J to the Q club A, club 4 to the K diamond A, diamond Q to the K spade A, spade Q to the K and finally the spade J

Tomorrow's Problem.

If West takes two spades and switches to the heart 8 how should South try to make 5-Diamonds and how can his opponents defeat him?

FINDS GROWTH IN PERCENTAGE OF HOME OWNERS

RPI Also Shows That Majority of Tenants Move at Least Every Two Years.

EDITOR'S NOTE — This is the ninth of a series of articles on the work and findings of the Real Property Inventory, better known as the RPI, conducted by the WPA in Mansfield.

By HAROLD K. MANSFIELD
Director, Real Property Inventory

The statement is often heard that renters move about once a year. Interested in getting at the truth of the matter, the R. P. I gathered facts on duration of occupancy at each home

It was found that 1918 or 33.6 per cent of the tenant-occupied dwelling units have been lived in less than one year so the above statement is true for at least a third of the renters. In 126 representative cities of the northeast section of the United Statse, 34.4 per cent of the tenant-occupied dwellings had been occupied less than a year. In fact all of our percentages presented here for duration of occupancy for tenants varied only one or two points from the average percentages for the Northeast section of the United States.

One thousand and sixty-five or 18.6 per cent of renters have lived in their homes from one to two years. This means that 52.2 per cent of the renters move at least once every two years.

There are 1,459 or 25.5 per cent of the tenant-occupied homes with an occupancy of from two to five years. The balance of 1,274 or 22.3 per cent of the rented homes have had their occupants for over five years. Out of this last group, 104 of the renters have lived in the same dwellings for 20 years or longer.

The largest group of owners, 1898 or 30 per cent have occupied their homes from 10 to 20 years. Then come the 1,427 owners or 22.6 per cent of the total who have lived in the same homes for 20 years or more. Owner occupancy of from 5 to 10 years accounts for 904 or 14.3 per cent of the total.

Thus a total of 66.9 per cent of the owner-occupied dwellings have had the same families in them for 5 years or more. Compare this with 83.6 per cent which is the figure for the northeast part of the United States.

There are 1,306 or 20.7 per cent of homes that have been owner-occupied for two to five years as compared to 10.8 per cent for the other cities. Seven hundred and eighty-seven owners or 12.4 per cent of the total have lived in their present homes for less than two years as compared to the other cities' 5.6 per cent.

Thus 33.1 per cent of Mansfield owners have lived in their own homes less than five years as compared to 16.4 per cent of the other cities.

A change in the per cent of new owners is directly reflected in the activity of the real estate market and in the same ration. We cannot say that real estate activity here is twice as good as it is in the average city (although the above figures would indicate that because the surveys in the other cities were made three to four years ago.

However a conservative estimate based on our own figures for those same years places real estate market activity here as being at least 50 per cent better than in the average city in this region.

ACCEPTS THIRD HIGHEST BID ON WATER METERS

City Purchases 400 New Units From New York Firm; Offer $75 Above Lowest Bid.

The city today had accepted the third highest of seven bids for its annual supply of new water meters to be purchased for the water department.

The winning bid was submitted by the Phoenix Meter corporation of Staten Island, N. Y. and totals $2,225. The contract calls for the delivery of 400 new meters.

The bid was $75 higher than the lowest of seven bids which was submitted by the Pittsburg Equitable Meter company, Pittsburg, Pa. This firm's price was $2,150.

Other proposals below the Phoenix Meter bid were submitted by Badger Meter company, Milwaukee, Wis., which bid $2,162; The Buffalo Meter company, Buffalo, N. Y., $2,175; The Hughes Supply company, Mansfield, $2,187.50.

Two other bids higher than the Phoenix proposal were submitted by the Neptune Meter company, New York City, which bid $2,625, and the Hersey Manufacturing company, Boston, Mass., which submitted a price of $2,887.50.

Considered Better Meter.

Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton said the board of control which is comprised of him and Mayor William J. Locke accepted the Phoenix meter because they considered it to be of better construction than the others.

Meanwhile the board called for new bids on five cars of vitrified sewer pipe after revising specifications and rejecting seven proposals that had been submitted several weeks ago.

Crafton said that sealed proposals would be received at his office until noon April 2 on the various size pipe, all of which must be double strength and 80 per cent shale.

SALES RECEIPTS UP 23 PER CENT

Increase To March 2 Is Twice Gain For Entire State.

Showing a gain well ahead of the state average, Richland county sales tax receipts to March 2 were 23 per cent above collections for the same period last year. The gain in Ohio was 12.2 per cent.

Figures compiled by State Treasurer Don H. Ebright showed receipts amounting to $84,773 to March 2, an increase of $16,233 over the same period last year.

For the week ending March 2 collections in the county amounted to $8,953 as compared with $7,667 for the corresponding week of 1939.
